Selenski homicide trial is on

Judge rejects call for delay until Feb. 2013

By EDWARD LEWIS
elewis@timesleader.com

WILKES-BARRE – Hugo Selenski's double homicide trial will begin in 52 days.

Luzerne County Judge Fred Pierantoni loudly banged his gavel seconds after he denied a request by attorneys Shelley Centini and Edward Rymnsza to continue Selenski's trial to February 2013.

Centini pleaded with Pierantoni for nearly an hour Thursday, claiming she could not be "competent" or "effective" in defending Selenski if the trial was not continued from Sept. 10. Centini and Rymnsza were appointed to defend Selenski in January.

A third attorney on Selenski's defense team, David Lampman, recently resigned.

Pierantoni used Centini's own words in her request to postpone the trial as his reason to keep to the schedule.

"Mr. Selenski has the benefit of two capital homicide-certified attorneys," Pierantoni said before referring to Centini's pledge that she will continue to protect Selenski's rights at whatever cost.

Assistant District Attorneys Sam Sanguedolce, Jarrett Ferentino and Michael Melnick and county Detective Gary Capitano are prohibited from pub-

Demolition of structures in the path of flooding opens up new possibilities and potential problems for property owners and local officials alike

PETE G. WILCOX/THE TIMES LEADER

Jenkins Township resident Joe Cernera loves his River Road residence of 60 years but is relieved to be part of an upcoming buyout because he has gone through eight floods.

Buyouts raise hopes, challenges

By JENNIFER LEARN-ANDES
jandes@timesleader.com

Jenkins Township resident Joe Cernera is on pins and needles waiting for the buyout of his flood-prone property.

"I want to get out of here so bad. I love it here, but I can't go through this again," said Cernera, who has dealt with eight floods in 60 years at his River Road home.

Township Supervisor Stanley Rovinski is thrilled Cernera and at least 66 other township property owners are expected to get a fresh start on higher ground, but the resulting demolition will create a new concern because municipalities must own and maintain the cleared lots left behind.

The land must remain undeveloped, and the township already has several playgrounds and athletic fields, Rovinski said.

"We don't really need another park," he said.

At least for humans. He wants to explore the possibility of a dog park similar to ones in Wilkes-Barre and Hazleton.

A citizen suggested a golf driving range, he said.

"That's a great idea. We'll find something useful," he said.

Rovinski expects a sizeable void from buyouts in the Miller Street section known as "The Patch," which still contains several structures off foundations from September flooding. A few buyouts are expected in Cernera's neighborhood, which offers a front-porch view of the Susquehanna River.

Cernera said the site could be a scenic rest spot with some walking paths and benches if enough connecting lots are cleared. The layout of vacant space will be up in the air until buyout negotiations wrap up this fall because impacted property owners have the right to back out of sales up to closing day, officials say.

Airport parking spaces go empty

Drillers' changing fortunes blamed for decline in parking, passengers last month.

By ANDREW M. SEDER
aseder@timesleader.com

PITTSBURGH TWP. – The Wilkes-Barre/Scranton International Airport has more parking but fewer passengers.

Airport officials tied both to Marcellus Shale natural gas drilling. Industry workers – many from out of state – filled the parking lot and garage with vehicles as drilling increased in recent years and the airport responded with a $533,146 project that added 143 parking spaces.

A dedication ceremony for the parking expansion was held Thursday, before an airport board meeting at which it was reported the passenger count in June was 8.2 percent below June 2011.

Barry J. Centini, the airport's director, blamed the natural gas industry for the decline in parking lot – and overall airport – use. He said the low price of natural gas has caused companies drilling in the Marcellus Shale formation in the state's Northern Tier to slow down production and limit the number of new wells drilled.

State and federal data support his view.

In Wyoming County, according to Department of Environmental Protection, 105 well permits were issued in 2011. This year only seven have been issued and none since Feb. 16. In Columbia County, there were six permits issued last year, none this year.

The price of natural gas in April was $1.89 per thousand cubic feet. In April 2011, the price was $4.05. A high of $10.36 was registered in June 2008.

In June, 13,757 vehicles used the airport's lots, a 9 percent decrease compared to June 2011. From May to June, parking was down 11 percent, although the year-to-date total through June

Computer hacker mom literally made the grade

Police: Access used to change kids' marks

By MANUEL GAMIZ JR. and MARION CALLAHAN
The Morning Call, Allentown

Most parents would do anything to help their children succeed in school, but one Weisenberg Township mother took it too far, Lehigh County authorities say.

Catherine Venusto, a former Northwestern Lehigh School District employee, used her knowledge of the district's computer system – and the superintendent's password – to change her children's grades, state police said.

Her daughter went from a failing grade to a medical exception, according to court records, and her son went from a grade of 98 percent to an even more impressive 99 percent.

When state police detectives interviewed Venusto, 45, at her home last Thursday, she admitted changing the grades and also admitted using the superintendent's passwords to gain access to district emails and personnel files, according to court records.

Venusto said she logged on to the district's computer system, even after she had left her job as a secretary for the district, out of "curiosity and boredom," according to court records.

On Wednesday, Venusto's curiosity got her charged with three counts each of unlawful use of a computer and computer trespassing, all third-degree felonies. She was arraigned before District Judge Robert C. Halal and released on $30,000 unsecured bail.

Authorities say Venusto used the superintendent's information from Aug. 23, 2010, to February 2012 to gain access to the district's human resources system, which contained thousands of files associated with district

Ex-PSU board chairman resigns

Steve Garban was harshly criticized over his handling of the child sex abuse crisis.

By MICHAEL RUBINKAM
Associated Press

The former chairman of the Penn State board of trustees resigned on Thursday, becoming the first board member to do so in the wake of the Jerry Sandusky child sex abuse scandal.

Steve Garban was harshly criticized over his handling of the crisis that engulfed Penn State after Sandusky's arrest last November, and he faced persistent calls from alumni and fellow board members to step down.

Garban

An internal investigation by former FBI Director Louis Freeh found that Garban was briefed twice about developments in the Sandusky case but didn't share what he knew with the entire board, depriving trustees of a chance to prepare for the worst crisis in Penn State's 157-year history.

After the report's release, trustees accepted responsibility for a failure of oversight and said they were "deeply ashamed." Board Chairwoman Karen Peetz, who announced Garban's resignation in a letter on the board's website, said at the time that no trustee would step down, however.

Incumbent trustee Anne Riley lost re-election last spring as alumni upset over the board's handling of the crisis picked three new trustees — all of whom campaigned on a reform platform — to sit on the 32-member panel.

A 1959 Penn State graduate, Garban worked at the university for 33 years, the last 12 as treasurer and senior vice president of finance and operations. Alumni first elected him to the board of trustees in 1998, and he began his fifth three-year term in 2010.

Some trustees felt he was too close to ousted university president Graham Spanier, according to the Freeh report.

In April 2011, the report said, Spanier told Garban about a grand jury investigation of Sandusky. Garban, in turn, failed to alert fellow board members. Garban told investigators that Spanier downplayed the Sandusky probe, and he recalled his former boss saying, "It was the third or fourth grand jury and nothing would come of it," the report said.

Then, on Oct. 28, Garban learned from Penn State's chief lawyer that two university administrators were about to be charged with failing to report suspected child abuse. Garban told investigators he was "astounded" when he saw Sandusky in the Nittany Lion Club at Penn State's home game against Illinois on Oct. 29. Yet he informed only two other trustees — James Broadhurst and John Surma — that charges against Sandusky, Athletic Director Tim Curley and Vice President Gary Schultz were imminent.

Garban stepped down as board chairman three days after Sandusky's Nov. 5 arrest, handing the job to Surma, the vice chairman. One day later, the board ousted revered football coach Joe Paterno and Spanier.

Meeting in Scranton last week, trustees were privately furious that Garban, Broadhurst and Surma failed to warn them about the impending scandal, a trustee told The Associated Press, speaking on condition of anonymity to discuss sensitive board matters.

Hazle Twp. fire suspicious

Firefighters pack away fire hoses after extinguishing a fire reported at Greenvue Meats at 832 Winters Ave., in the Green Ridge section of Hazle Township at about 6:30 p.m. Thursday. Hazle Township Rescue Chief Matthew Marsicano said a lean-to used to store wood for the smoker machine near the back of the building caught fire and the fire spread to the roof. No one was hurt. Marsicano said the fire appears suspicious and a fire marshal is investigating.

POLICE BLOTTER

WILKES-BARRE – A city woman faces multiple charges after she allegedly bit a man, threw bleach on him and chased him with a butcher knife, police said.

Police responded to the area of 19 Bradford St. at about 7:23 p.m. Wednesday for a complaint of a woman with a butcher knife chasing a man and yelling.

Police encountered Michael Whitehead, who was standing near 32 Arch St., and he told them his girlfriend, Mary Tooley, bit him on the back, threw bleach on him and chased him up with a knife after a disagreement about missing money. Police said they saw the bite mark on Whitehead's back.

While officer David Morris was questioning Whitehead, police said Tooley came out of 32 Arch St. carrying a large knife. Tooley then yelled at Morris and pointed the knife at him, police said.

When Toole failed to drop the knife, Morris drew his Taser and Tooley cursed and flung the knife towards five children who came out of the same house she did; the knife came within a foot of striking one child and landed near another, police said.

Tooley, 31, was charged with simple assault, disorderly conduct, harassment and endangering the welfare of children. She was arraigned before District Judge Andrew Barilla Jr. and released on $10,000 unsecured bail.

Whitehead, 33, was arrested on a bench warrant and remained in the county prison on Thursday night.

RICE TWP. – A Mountain Top man was arrested on burglary and related charges on Wednesday.

Police said they wanted Thomas Hischak, with a last known address of Nuangola Drive, for questioning in a burglary on July 10.

Police said Alyce Saba at 604 Laurel Lakes Drive had reported that her home computer, two gold bracelets, a gold mother's ring, gold earrings and a gold men's class ring were stolen while she was away for a week and that she had been told that Hischak was seen in the area of her home while she was away.

Police said a check of the Precious Metals Database revealed that Hischak pawned the men's gold ring at King Tut's in Wilkes-Barre.

Hischak was arraigned on two counts of burglary and one count each of criminal trespass, theft by unlawful taking and receiving stolen property before District Judge Andrew Barilla Jr. He was also charged with defiant trespass after he allegedly admitted to leaving a bag of his belongings on the porch of his parents' home, from which he had been banned. He was sent to the county prison for lack of $6,000 bail.

Emmys again take shine to cable

"Mad Men" and "Girls" help cement cable lead over network programming.

By LYNN ELBER
AP Television Writer

LOS ANGELES — "Mad Men" is on the brink of making Emmy drama series history, Lena Dunham's comedy "Girls" is the buzz du jour, and both are on cable. As Thursday's nominations proved, the gap between cable and the broadcast networks is stunningly wide and only getting wider.

Five out of six best drama series slots were claimed by cable shows, both premium and basic, with the sixth going to PBS. Networks, which had controlled the comedy genre last year, lost fully half of that turf to "Girls," "Veep" and "Curb Your Enthusiasm," all HBO.

Not a single actor in a network drama series earned a lead or supporting bid for September's Emmy Awards.

Cable channels offer so much awards-caliber programming that even theatrical films, increasingly dependent on action films and adolescent comedies, can look shabby in comparison.

"A lot of what's happening on cable TV, you'd be hard-pressed to see that happen in a studio film," said Don Cheadle, whose performance in Showtime's "House of Lies" earned him a best comedy actor bid. "Right now, one of the most difficult things to put together are movies which have interesting content and adult themes."

For writers and actors who want to pursue creative work, that leaves independent films or the expanding number of cable channels willing to invest in ambitious scripted projects.

Lena Dunham, who made a splash with her indie film "Tiny Furniture," breathed life into the TV sitcom with "Girls," a darkly comedic coming-of-age New York story on HBO. It received a best comedy nod and acting, writing and directing nominations for her.

She described the experience of debuting the much-buzzed about "Girls" as "this feeling of finding your audience in this incredibly clear, beautiful way and being shocked that people were connecting to what I was doing and being amazed by the level of debate it was starting."

"Girls" is HBO's "current spin on 'Sex and the City,'" which was a strong past Emmy favorite," said Tom O'Neil, editor of the Gold Derby awards website. He called Dunham the current "toast of Hollywood."

History Channel moved into scripted fare in a big way (after backing away from airing the controversial "The Kennedys") with its "Hatfields & McCoy," starring Kevin Costner, which earned solid reviews and spectacular ratings this spring and 16 nods Thursday.

The miniseries was the most-watched entertainment telecast ever on basic cable, drawing about 13 million each for its first two parts and hitting a high of 14.3 million for its third chapter. The best the networks had to offer that week: NBC's "America's Got Talent," seen by 11.5 million people.

Networks increasingly rely on talent contests and sports, programming that invites live viewing and means fewer people will record the airings and skip commercials.

Scripted series, whether drama or comedy, tend to be formulaic — which certainly doesn't mean unpopular. CBS is the most-watched network on the strength of crime dramas including "NCIS," "CSI" and their spinoffs.

But innovation is coming from shows like "Mad Men," which earned a leading 17 Emmy nominations and the chance to earn its fifth best drama award and set a new record as the most-honored drama in television history.

The shows it's currently tied with and could leave behind: the broadcast dramas "Hill Street Blues," "L.A. Law" and "The West Wing," which once represented the best of TV.

"I always use 'L.A. Law' as an example," said "Mad Men" creator Matthew Weiner. "If you went to pitch 'L.A. Law' to NBC right now, you'd end up on Showtime."

But he said he's hesitant to talk about the broadcast vs. cable dynamic.

"It's because, in the end, I think people should remember that the same companies are making both products, and really it's a diversification business-wise," he said. "If you are in the business of Viacom, you are making 'Homeland' and you are making 'The Mentalist.'"

"There is always room to take a risk when you don't have to deliver 25 million people, and that's an unfair advantage," Weiner said.

The Emmy ceremony will air Sept. 23 with Jimmy Kimmel as host.

Brace appeals pay denial

Former Luzerne County Chief Deputy Clerk Bill Brace has appealed a federal judge's ruling that upheld the county's denial of Brace's pension based on his guilty plea to a corruption charge. Brace's attorney, Carl Poveromo, appealed U.S. District Judge A. Richard Caputo's ruling to the Third Circuit Court of Appeals.

Brace

Caputo in June dismissed a federal lawsuit Brace filed against the retirement board, which denied him his pension based on his guilty plea in 2010 to corrupt receipt of a reward for official action. Prosecutors said Brace accepted a tailor-made suit in exchange for helping a company obtain a county contract. Caputo ruled the offense triggered the state's pension forfeiture act, which precludes a public official from receiving a pension if they are convicted of a crime related to the employment. Poveromo is challenging Caputo's interpretation of the act, and the judge's ruling that Brace was not entitled to a hearing before the retirement board acted to deny his pension.

W-B Twp. fire chief guilty of DUI

John Yuknavich's attorney likely will appeal, claims traffic stop illegal.

By TERRIE MORGAN-BESECKER
tmorgan@timesleader.com

WILKES-BARRE – Wilkes-Barre Township Fire Chief John Yuknavich was convicted Thursday of a drunken-driving charge lodged after police stopped his vehicle while investigating allegations he violated a protection-from-abuse order. Senior Luzerne County Judge Joseph Augello rendered the verdict after a brief non-jury trial. Yuknavich was immediately sentenced to 48 hours in the Luzerne County Correctional Facility. Barry Dyller, Yuknavich's attorney, had attempted to get evidence in the case suppressed, arguing the traffic stop that led to the charges was illegal. Yuknavich, 48, of East Northampton had obtained a protection-from-abuse order against him. A blood test showed Yuknavich had a blood alcohol level of 0.162 percent, double the legal limit of .08 percent. Pavlick had called police to report Yuknavich drove past her home and revved the engine of his car. Yuknavich was charged with violating the PFA, but the case was later dismissed because the order did not specifically prohibit him from being near her home. Dyller argued that, at the time of the traffic stop, police did not have sufficient evidence to support the allegation he had violated the PFA, therefore the stop was illegal. Assistant District Attorney Tom Hogans maintained the officer only needed to have a "reasonable suspicion" that Yuknavich had committed the offense. In the alternate, Hogans said the police officer witnessed Yuknavich speeding and driving carelessly after the officer began following him to question him about the PFA matter. In his ruling, Augello noted the officer had not determined if there was a PFA violation. He nonetheless denied the suppression motion, finding police had sufficient evidence to stop Yuknavich based on the driving violations. Dyller advised Augello he will likely appeal the ruling on the suppression motion. Yuknavich did not wish to seek bail pending resolution of that matter, however, and opted to be immediately sentenced. The conviction means Yuknavich will face suspension of his driving license by the state Department of Transportation. Dyller said he does not believe that suspension will impact Yuknavich's position with the fire department. "He won't be able to drive a fire truck, but it won't affect his ability to serve the department," Dyller said. In addition to the prison sentence, Augello ordered Yuknavich to pay $525 in fines, $307 in restitution and to undergo a drug-and-alcohol evaluation. He was directed to report to the county prison on Aug. 10 to serve the sentence. Yuknavich is also facing separate theft charges for allegedly stealing nearly $11,865 from the fire department and using its credit card to make $3,706 in personal purchases. That case remains pending in county court.

State to look for 'ghost riders'

LCTA board member also says he was told supervisor groped female driver; no comment from officials.

By STEVE MOCARSKY
smocarsky@timesleader.com

The state Department of Transportation will look into allegations that county bus drivers padded senior citizen ridership numbers with "ghost riders" to increase government funding. PennDOT spokeswoman Erin Waters said on Thursday that department officials were aware of allegations of ridership padding that a county councilman made publicly on Tuesday, and she was researching information on the state funding formula for public transit systems as it relates to ridership. A Luzerne County Transportation Authority board member also said former board members told him a female bus driver was groped by a supervisor last year and the supervisor received a two-day suspension followed by a week-long suspension after the supervisor had a confrontation related to the incident. On the alleged ghost riders, Luzerne County Councilman Edward Brominski told fellow council members during Tuesday's council meeting that the information came to light because drivers allegedly stopped marking nonexistent riders when they became disgruntled about the authority's installation of cameras in their buses, which they viewed as invasive. He said the ghost riders were allegedly logged as senior citizens because they present cards that don't have to be swiped by drivers. Other riders feed money into a box or present bus passes purchased in advance. Brominski said two bus drivers, a passenger and both a present and former authority board member discussed the allegation with him. At least one of these individuals asked the Federal Bureau of Investigation and another governmental entity to investigate, he said. On Thursday, LCTA board member Patrick Conway confirmed he spoke to Brominski after "a couple former board members (and) a couple bus drivers" told him of the allegations. Conway, who was appointed to the board in November, said he was told that authority Executive Director Stanley Strelish directed drivers to pad the senior citizen numbers. Nanticoke's new city manager, Pamela Heard, appointed Wednesday night

Nanticoke names new manager

City's financial officer replaces Holly Cirko, who was recently charged with driving under the influence.

By BILL O'BOYLE

NANTICOKE – Pamela Heard is the new city manager, replacing Holly Cirko, who was recently charged with driving under the influence. Heard, 43, of Mountain Top, will continue serving as financial officer temporarily. City Council unanimously confirmed her appointment Wednesday night. The post pays $55,000 annually. Heard said Thursday that she, her husband and two children will move to Nanticoke within one year, as per the requirement of the city's Home Rule Charter. "There are lots of good things happening in the city," Heard said. She said Geisinger Health System is building a satellite clinic downtown and a streetscape project will begin soon. She said the federal government will provide $5.6 million of the $7 million project and the city will provide $1.4 million. Several streets are being repaved this summer, she added. "The Geisinger project will bring more jobs to the city, and more jobs means more people and more tax revenue," Heard said. Mayor Joseph Dougherty said he is looking forward to working with Heard, whom he called a dedicated employee. "She possesses exceptional leadership qualities," Dougherty said. "She's not afraid to stay late to get the job done. I have great faith and confidence in her." As part of the Act 47 recovery plan, the city formed a manager recruitment committee to handle the selection process. Cirko's title had been city administrator, but the title was changed to city

Shootings spur Plymouth crime watch

People will be able to sign up at a meeting set for tonight.

By JERRY LYNOTT

PLYMOUTH – The fatal shootings earlier this month in a First Street apartment provided the push for residents to revitalize a crime watch group in the borough. The group will meet at 7 p.m. today in the Goodwill Hose Co. No. 2, said Mary Rittenhouse, who is coordinating the effort. "I think there were murmurs around the neighborhood about how it was changing," she said Thursday.

But the July 7 shootings that left three people dead and critically injured a fourth person were enough to spur Rittenhouse and others to action. Two half brothers from Philadelphia were charged in the shootings and remain held without bail in the Luzerne County Correctional Facility. Rittenhouse, owner of Kiddie Prep Child Care on West Main Street, said she is part of a core group bringing back the crime watch. "We are going to form an actual group," she added. People will be able to sign up at tonight's meeting and the next steps to be taken will be determined. "It's basically informational at this point," Rittenhouse said.

WHAT'S NEXT

The Plymouth Crime Watch is reforming and will hold an informational meeting at 7 p.m. today at the Goodwill Hose Co. No. 2, 451 W. Main St., Plymouth. Borough Police Chief Myles Collins and Mayor Dorothy Petrosky are scheduled to attend the meeting along with Charlotte Raup and members of the Wilkes-Barre Crime Watch. "She offered to help us," said Rittenhouse of Raup. Raup said the Wilkes-Barre group has been in existence for 30 years and acts as "eyes and ears of the police" throughout the city.

Six are killed in crash

A chain-reaction crash that started when a tractor-trailer rear-ended a vehicle in a work zone in northern New York on Thursday left six people dead and another injured, state police said.

Trooper Jack Keller said five of the people killed were riding in an SUV that burst into flames when it was struck.

He said the SUV had stopped or was moving slowly Thursday morning because of road repaving on Route 11 in the Jefferson County town of Antwerp. The truck slammed into the back of one vehicle, causing collisions with a state Department of Transportation truck and the SUV, which then burst into flames, Keller said.

The driver of another vehicle died at a hospital around 12:30 p.m., and a transportation worker was hospitalized, Keller said.

HARRISBURG

Corbett faults PSU admin

The previous Penn State administration was not forthcoming to subpoenas seeking email evidence in the Jerry Sandusky case and that issue is "probably the subject of an investigation in the Attorney General's Office," Gov. Tom Corbett said Thursday.

Corbett, the former attorney general who launched the investigation of Sandusky, told reporters, "I think you need to say prior administration, prior people who were in control. Now if I limit it to that, I am very disappointed in the lack of forthcoming evidence to the subpoena that was given to them by the Attorney General's Office."

Asked if he thought administrators obstructed justice, Corbett said, "I have my own opinion and I am not going to share it with you."

Arrest in kidnapping try

Police have made an arrest in the attempted kidnapping of a 10-year-old Philadelphia girl that was captured on chilling surveillance video.

Authorities said Carlos Figueroa-Fagot turned himself in to police and was charged with attempted kidnapping, indecent assault and related offenses.

The video footage shows a man approach the girl from behind in broad daylight as she walked in her neighborhood with her toddler brother on Tuesday.

The man puts his hand over the girl's mouth and tries to carry her away. But she struggles and her brother screams.

Monsignor seeks probation

The first U.S. church official convicted of endangering children in the priest-abuse scandal asked Thursday for a probationary sentence, saying he had already experienced months of scrutiny, vilification and shame.

Monsignor William Lynn, 61, of Philadelphia awaits sentencing on Tuesday.

Lynn, the former secretary for clergy at the city's Roman Catholic archdiocese, handled priest assignments and child sexual-assault complaints from 1992 to 2004.

He faces up to seven years in prison after a jury convicted him last month of felony child endangerment for his oversight of now-defrocked priest Edward Avery. Avery is serving a 2 1/2 to five-year term after pleading guilty before trial to sexually assaulting an altar boy in church.

Syria's president turns up on TV

Appearance comes one day after a bombing killed some top regime officials.

By ELIZABETH A. KENNEDY
Associated Press

BEIRUT — Syrian President Bashar Assad made his first appearance Thursday since a bomb killed some of his top lieutenants, looking calm and composed on state TV even as his forces turned parts of Damascus into combat zones and rebels seized two of the country's border crossings.

The unprecedented attack on Assad's inner circle Wednesday, along with the government's inability to crush the rebels after five days of intense clashes in the Syrian capital, point to an unraveling of his grip on power after 16 months of violence.

"It is a war going on here, literally a war," said a 25-year-old woman in the Muhajereen neighborhood. The sounds of battle had kept her up all night and she stayed home from work because she feared random gunfire, she added.

Even though Assad's powerful military remains mostly loyal — suggesting a total collapse may not be imminent — the rebels appeared to be making startling gains as the civil war intensified.

Besides the fighting in Damascus, rebels took over a Syrian border crossing near the Iraqi town of Qaim, said Iraqi army Brig. General Qassim al-Dulaimi. Fighting at a Syrian army outpost near the Syrian-Iraq border killed 21 Syrian soldiers, he added.

An image made from video Thursday purports to show a rebel stomping on a picture of late Syrian President Hafez Assad.

In addition, amateur video posted online showed rebels taking over the Bab al-Hawa border crossing with Turkey, where they stomped on portraits of Assad. The Associated Press could not independently verify the video because the government bars most media from working independently in the country.

A diplomatic solution to ending the bloodshed seemed even more remote after Russia and China again vetoed a Western-backed U.N. resolution aimed at pressuring Assad's government to end the escalating conflict.

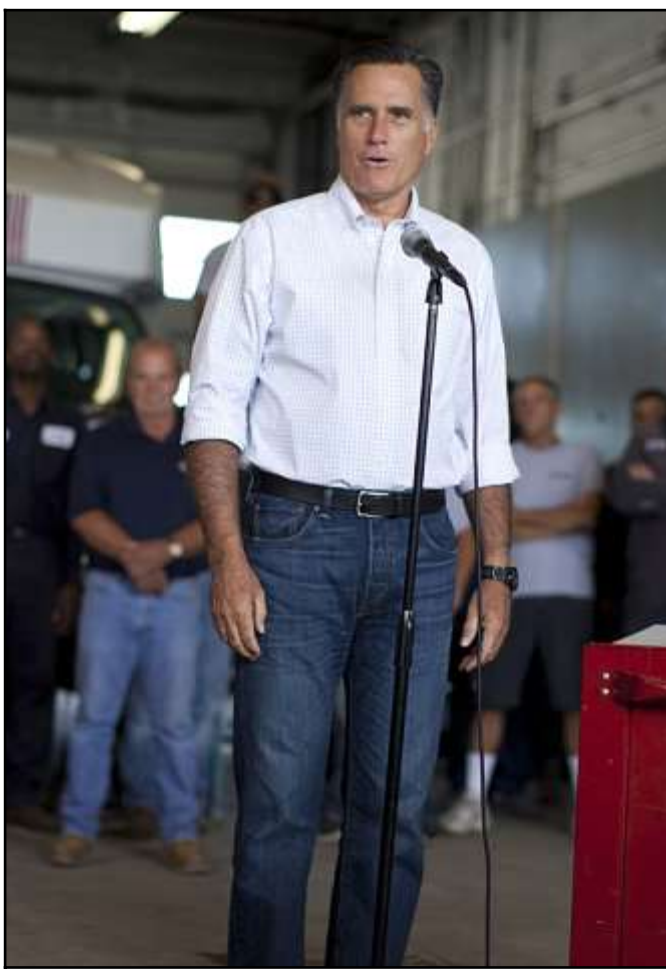

Analysts said the regime was clearly shaken by the violence in the heart of its power base of Damascus, but the next step was not clear yet.

"We should not get carried away with speculating about the impending fall of the regime," said Salman Shaikh, director of the Brookings Doha Center and an analyst on regional politics. He said the regime's forces "are still showing a certain amount of cohesiveness in battle."

Pressure on GOP candidate Mitt Romney to release tax information intensifies as new polling shows continued dead heat in contest

Obama stays on attack in Fla.

By KEN THOMAS
Associated Press

WASHINGTON — President Barack Obama is trying to keep the pressure on Republican rival Mitt Romney, opening two days of campaigning in Florida in search of military veterans, seniors and unaligned voters in the state's crucial mid-section. Romney's wife said no more of her husband's tax information would be made public.

Obama was appearing Thursday in Jacksonville and West Palm Beach as his campaign urges Romney to release more years of his tax returns and keeps a sharp focus on the former Massachusetts governor's tenure as the head of a private equity firm.

Meanwhile, a New York Times/CBS poll released Thursday shows Mitt Romney's support at 47 percent of registered voters, with President Barack Obama at 46 percent. A Fox News poll has Obama at 45 percent and Romney at 41 percent. Both results are within the polls' margins of error and show very little movement from surveys taken earlier in the summer.

"We've given all that people need to know and understand about our financial situation and about how we live our life," Ann Romney told ABC News in an interview broadcast Thursday.

Florida is the largest and most coveted of the nation's Election Day toss-up states, a place where Romney could severely damage Obama's chances of winning reelection. Republicans are holding their national convention in Tampa in August in hopes of giving themselves an edge in the state.

Yet, if Obama can lock down Florida's 29 electoral votes, it would be difficult for Romney to mount enough support elsewhere to capture the White House.

Polls have shown Obama and Romney in a dead heat in the state, which has struggled with an unemployment rate of 8.6 percent. Florida provided the deciding margin in George W. Bush's victory in 2000 and the state has been closely contested ever since. Obama carried it in 2008.

Obama has repeatedly criticized Romney's private equity firm, Bain Capital, arguing that it promoted the outsourcing of jobs to countries like China and India. And Democrats want Romney to make public past tax returns, noting that the one year for which he has released returns showed investments and offshore accounts in Switzerland and the Cayman Islands.

Several Republicans have joined in the call for more transparency, including several GOP senators and Texas Gov. Rick Perry, who challenged Romney for the GOP nomination earlier this year.

In an interview aired Thursday on WTOL-TV in Toledo, Ohio, Romney said one reason not to release more of his returns was that "the Democratic Party and the opposition has all these people that comb through and try and find anything they can to distract from the issues people care about, oftentimes in a dishonest way."

Father turns down Disney trip for daughter

The Associated Press

TOLEDO, Ohio — A 4-year-old girl who went through two years of cancer treatments isn't being allowed to go on a Make-A-Wish trip to Disney World because her father said she's in remission and the trips should go to children who are sicker than his daughter.

The young girl, McKenna May of Haskins, had the trip postponed twice while she was undergoing treatment for leukemia and finally was set to go in August when the father refused to sign off on the trip, the girl's mother and grandmother said Thursday.

The family said Make-A-Wish requires signatures from both parents if either have visitation rights or is listed on the birth certificate. McKenna's parents never married or lived together. Her grandmother said the father only recently received visitation privileges.

McKenna's mother and grandmother are now collecting donations at local businesses to pay for the trip to Disney on their own. Money has poured in since their story spread beyond northwest Ohio. They haven't told McKenna why the Make-A-Wish trip was canceled.

Her father, William May of Toledo, said donations made to the organization should help those who are terminally ill. "Spend the money on a child who this might be their last memory," May said Thursday. "Kids who are only going to live a year or six months."

The girl's grandmother Lori Helleppie said McKenna has had a rough two years and won't be judged to be free of cancer until five years after her last treatment, which was last month.

Stalled farm bill gains new urgency

Widespread drought puts more pressure on House to agree to compromise.

By KIM GEIGER

Tribune Washington Bureau (MCT)

WASHINGTON — As record drought conditions continue to plague farmers and send corn prices higher, some lawmakers are pressing House leaders to bring the now-stalled farm bill to the floor.

The House Agriculture Committee approved the once-every-five-years legislation earlier this month, but there have been indications that House leaders wouldn't bring the legislation to the floor before the election. House Speaker John Boehner, R-Ohio, dislikes key parts of the bill, and many members of his party object to its massive farm subsidies. The bill also cuts $16 billion from food stamp programs, which is sure to spark a bitter battle with Democrats.

But as dry weather continues to hurt farmers, some say the bill can't wait. Led by Reps. Kristi Noem, R-S.D., and Peter Welch, D-Vt., a bipartisan group of 38 Republicans and 24 Democrats sent a letter Thursday asking that House leaders "make this legislation a priority."

The House bill and a bill passed by the Senate earlier this year contain beefed-up crop insurance programs that would protect farmers from losses like those being caused by the drought conditions.

"What do we do? We need to pass a farm bill," Sen. Debbie Stabenow, a Michigan Democrat who chairs the Senate Agriculture Committee, said Thursday morning in an appearance on MSNBC.

"The speaker needs to bring it up on the floor," Stabenow said. "And frankly, we need to add some additional disaster assistance for 2012 as part of that. But we've got to get this done."

The bill that passed the Senate in May contains many of the controversial subsidies and cuts food stamps by $4.5 billion. The chamber has been waiting for the House to act on its version of the legislation before the two chambers meet to craft a compromise bill.

Stabenow said the Senate is unwilling to accept the deeper cuts to food stamps contained in the House bill, but that it might be possible to meet "in the middle."

"If the House gives us a bill, we'll negotiate," Stabenow said. "We'll come together in the middle. But the House has to act so we can do that."

The drought is believed to be the worst since 1956.

2nd DUI test tossed in fatality

Onix Gorbea-Lespair is facing trial in connection with vehicular homicide charge.

By EDWARD LEWIS
elewis@timesleader.com

WILKES-BARRE — Prosecutors are prohibited from using a second blood test with alcohol results against Onix Gorbea-Lespair, who is facing a vehicular homicide charge.

Luzerne County Judge Lisa Gelb on Wednesday granted a request by attorney Demetrius Fannick to throw out a second blood test given to Gorbea-Lespair, 50, after he allegedly struck and killed 18-year-old Kayla Bahrey, of McAdoo, on Interstate 81 on July 3, 2011.

State police at Hazleton allege Gorbea-Lespair, of Mechanicsburg, had a blood alcohol level of .084 percent after he struck Bahrey along the interstate as she stood outside a disabled vehicle.

Tyler Paisley, of Hazleton, was sitting inside the disabled vehicle and was injured in the crash.

A handcuffed Gorbea-Lespair was taken by state police to Hazleton General Hospital for a blood test. He was advised of his rights and consented to blood being drawn from his arm, according to court records.

Before taking Gorbea-Lespair to the state police barracks, a trooper was instructed to return Gorbea-Lespair to the hospital for a second blood test. Fannick argued Gorbea-Lespair was not advised of his rights before consenting to the second test.

Gelb ruled the second blood test was not for medical purposes and Gorbea-Lespair was not given a choice to refuse the second test.

Gorbea-Lespair's trial is scheduled to begin on Aug. 6 on charges of homicide by vehicle while driving under the influence, aggravated assault by vehicle and two counts of driving under the influence.

Al Franken's partner at 'SNL,' Tom Davis, dies

The Associated Press

HUDSON, N.Y. — Tom Davis, a writer who with Al Franken helped develop some of the most popular skits in the early years of "Saturday Night Live," died on Thursday at age 59.

His wife, Mimi Raleigh, said he died of throat and neck cancer at his home in the Hudson Valley, north of New York City. He was diagnosed in 2009.

Davis is best known as the thinner, taller partner in Franken and Davis, the off-kilter comedy duo who performed in the early years of the show. They also were among the first writers hired for the new show in 1975 and helped create memorable work such as the "Conneheads" skit with Dan Aykroyd and what evolved into the "Nick the Lounge Singer" skit starring Bill Murray performing lounge-lizard versions of songs including the "Star Wars" theme.

As performers, Davis was the quiet guy, overshadowed by the flashier Franken, who is now a Democratic senator from Minnesota. Davis, in a 2009 interview with The Associated Press, said, "If we were Sonny and Cher, he would be Cher."

Davis met Franken at a suburban prep school in Minnesota, where their first gig was making announcements at morning chapel. They hit it big with "SNL" and stayed there until 1980, then returned a few years later. Davis left the show in 1994, feeling frozen out. Still, he told the AP he would always treasure his time on the show.

"It's my family. It's my extended, dysfunctional family, and I love them," Davis said.

In his memoir, "Thirty-Nine Years of Short-Term Memory Loss: The Early Days of SNL From Someone Who Was There," Davis also detailed friendships with counterculture legends Jerry Garcia and Timothy Leary, his own drug use and his travel as a young hippie to India in the 1970s.

Davis kept up his quirky sense of humor to the end, writing an essay on his experiences with cancer.

"I wake up in the morning, delighted to be waking up, read, write, feed the birds, watch sports on TV, accepting the fact that in the foreseeable future I will be a dead person," Davis wrote. "I want to remind you that dead people are people too."

Founder of famous Harlem eatery dies

Sylvia's Restaurant remains a must-stop for locals, tourists and politicians.

By DEEPTI HAJELA

Associated Press

NEW YORK — Sylvia Woods, founder of the famed Harlem soul food restaurant that carries her name and is a must-stop for locals, tourists and politicians, has died. She was 86.

Woods died Thursday afternoon at her home in Mount Vernon, N.Y., said her granddaughter Tren'ness Woods-Black. She had been dealing with Alzheimer's disease for the past few years.

Woods and her husband Herbert, natives of South Carolina who met as children, started Sylvia's Restaurant in 1962. The restaurant is a Harlem fixture, with tourists and locals coming there for cornbread, ribs, collard greens, fried chicken and other staples of Southern cooking, and politicians making frequent visits while on the campaign trail.

One of those politicians, Rep. Charles Rangel, said he celebrated his recent victory in the Democratic primary for Congress at the restaurant, which is in his district and which he described as "a magical place that brought the community together."

"Ms. Sylvia created a special place on Lenox and 127th street. Sylvia's may have been famous nationally and internationally, but its soul has always remained in Harlem," he said. "Nothing can replace its founder, but her legacy will live on in the memories she helped make."

The Rev. Al Sharpton said Sylvia's was "more than a restaurant, it has been a meeting place for Black America." He said he had dined there with many famous faces including President Barack Obama and Caroline Kennedy.

Mayor Michael Bloomberg said, "We lost a legend today. For more than 50 years, New Yorkers have enjoyed Sylvia's and visitors have flocked to Harlem to get a table. In her words, the food was made with 'a whole lot of love' and generations of family and friends have come together at what became a New York institution."

From its start as a restaurant, Sylvia's has grown to include multiple cookbooks and a nationwide line of food products.

Woods-Black said the restaurant, marking its 50th anniversary in August, is more than just a place to eat, that it's a place where her grandmother could express her hospitality, a tradition that following generations have maintained.

"If you come alone, you're never going to dine alone," she said.

Woods-Black said her grandmother had officially stepped down from running the restaurant when she was 80, leaving it in the hands of her children and grandchildren.

Turns out not where, but who you're with that really matters...

with us always and forever.

Health care issue in NW

Northwest Area teachers, without contract for over a year, continuing discussions.

By TOM HUNTINGTON
Times Leader Correspondent

UNION TWP. – Contract negotiations between the Northwest Area Education Association and the school board are continuing, with the cost of health insurance being one of the major areas of dispute.

Board Chairman Randy Tomasacci said at Wednesday night's school board meeting that "teacher contract issues" were discussed at an executive session before the regular board meeting and, he said afterward, "They're supposed to present us with some proposals (on Thursday)."

The education association has been without a contract for more than a year. According to reports, a major obstacle in ongoing talks has been a refusal by the NAEA for teachers to pay a portion of the cost of health insurance.

A coinciding issue involves attempts by the school board to disassociate with the Northeast Pennsylvania Health Care Trust in an effort to reduce costs. The board provided notice to the trust that such disassociation has been scheduled for the 2013-14 school year. But Tomasacci said this action hasn't met with acceptance from the NAEA.

Tomasacci added there is language in the previous collective bargaining agreement stipulating coverage shall be equal or superior to that which presently exists. Any change effected by the board could face a legal challenge from the teachers union.

WHAT'S NEXT

Northwest Area School Board is scheduled to meet Aug. 15 at 7 p.m. in the high school library.

In June, the district paid a monthly premium of more than $189,000 to the trust.

In other discussion, Director Alton Farver contended a parking lot project performed at the Huntington Township school by Jeremy Kishbaugh Contracting was not "done right." Farver said that through an inspection he conducted while filling a pothole on the lot, he discovered the base was deficient. He said specifications called for 8 inches of shale, but he found areas where only 3 inches existed.

Farver said Kishbaugh's bid was $3,500, and the company was awarded the job by Chris Parnell of buildings and grounds.

In reaction to this situation, Tomasacci said a new policy has been instituted whereby project bids are to be reviewed by Superintendent Ron Gervera and then presented to the board for approval. Director Pete Lanza added, "The good ol' boy network is no more."

Tomasacci said the district will be as transparent as possible; no projects in the future will be executed without board consent.

The board approved a series of summer employment opportunities and awarded a contract to J.P. Mascaro for trash removal and recycling at a yearly cost of $22,220. It also moved to solicit bids for the purchase of a radio system to give district officials the ability to communicate with all student buses, starting with the 2012-13 term.

Improvements for downtown Nanticoke unveiled

$5.6 million from feds would help pay for walks, lighting, ramps and landscaping.

By SUSAN BETTINGER
Times Leader Correspondent

NANTICOKE – Mayor Joseph Dougherty on Wednesday night presented to City Council proposed renovations for the city's downtown area.

Daryl Pawlusch of Penn Eastern Engineering detailed the streetscape project, which will make improvements to Kosciuszko, Prospect, Union, Main and Market streets. Planned improvements include new sidewalks, curbs, ramps, trees and street lights.

Thirty parking spaces also will be added to the area, increasing the total to 58. Handicapped-accessible ramps also will be installed at the intersections. The project will bring new landscaping and sidewalks near the entrance to Weis Markets.

Pawlusch said the new lights will utilize LED technology, which will cut down on the energy used, saving the city a considerable amount of money yearly.

The federal government will provide $5.6 million of the $7 million project through an earmark and the city will provide $1.4 million, or 20 percent. A separate earmark of $2 million is being used to improve Alden Road, which is under construction. The earmarks were secured by former U.S. Rep. Paul Kanjorski.

WHAT'S NEXT

City council is scheduled to hold its next meeting on Aug. 1 at 7 p.m.

Council President Steve Duda said the plans are bringing "a significant change" to the city. He said that in order to invite commerce to the city, the improvements must be made, and residents should "embrace this change."

Finance Director Pam Heard said the 20 percent of the funding the city put in was money that has been saved from the sale of assets, minus expenditures, and excess revenue. Heard said raising taxes to pay for the project would not be necessary.

Also, there was a first reading of an ordinance to disband the city's Civil Service Commission and to establish two separate boards, one for the police department and one for the fire department.

manager under Home Rule.

Several candidates applied and Heard emerged as the unanimous choice of the five-member committee.

"I wasn't surprised when that recommendation was offered," Dougherty said.

The mayor said Cirko, 39, applied for the position, but her application was received late – past a set deadline – and the committee did not accept it.

Cirko has been on paid leave since crashing her car into a wall about 3 a.m. June 26.

Dougherty said Cirko's last day of employment with the city will be Aug. 3.

According to a criminal docket filed in the office of District Judge Donald Whittaker, Cirko was charged on July 6 with DUI, careless driving and accidental damage to an unattended vehicle or property stemming from her arrest on June 26. Her preliminary hearing before Whitaker is scheduled for Aug. 8 at 2:45 p.m.

According to the state website, The Financially Distressed Municipalities Act, also known as Act 47, empowers the state Department of Community and Economic Development to declare certain municipalities as financially distressed.

It provides for the restructuring of debt, limits the ability to obtain government funding, authorizes municipalities to participate in federal debt adjustment actions and bankruptcy actions, and provides for consolidation or merger of contiguous municipalities to relieve financial distress.

Heard said she has been working with the appointed recovery plan coordinator, and the city could be out of Act 47 status by the end of 2013 or early 2014.

"I'd like to be out of Act 47 tomorrow," Dougherty said. "We have an exit plan in place, and the city is in pretty good shape. We just have to watch our finances."

Dougherty said the city, like several other municipalities, has been having difficulty collecting its earned income tax revenue.

"We'll get by," he said.

Nanticoke's annual general fund budget is $4.2 million and the city has 56 employees. Two-thirds of the budget goes to the city's paid fire and police departments, Heard said.

Heard is a native of Exeter. She graduated from Wyoming Area High School and The University of Scranton with a degree in accounting. She is a certified public accountant.

"We have a wonderful staff here," Heard said. "They have been invaluable, helping out tremendously while we are short-staffed."

OUR OPINION: PATERNO MOVIE

Kirby fumbles on film decision

THE KIRBY CENTER caved.

By canceling today's planned screening of a short film about the late Joe Paterno, Luzerne County's pre-eminent arts venue not only let down ticketholders, but also disappointed people who value free expression.

Called "The Joe We Know," the hour-long documentary that debuted earlier this year in State College apparently became too hot for an area audience to handle. At least, that seems to be the judgment of decision-makers at the F.M. Kirby Center for the Performing Arts in Wilkes-Barre. They pulled the plug on the film about a week ago, issuing the news announcement Monday.

"We felt it was really the most sensitive decision," said Marilyn Santarelli, the Kirby's executive director.

Sensitive, we wonder, or safe?

A public backlash against all things Penn State, especially Paterno, took hold after last week's release of the Freeh report, which faulted the former head football coach and certain university administrators for failing to act to prevent a pedophile in their midst from abusing new victims. The report – produced at the request of, and paid for by, the university's trustees – was not based on sworn testimony. It probably won't be the last word in defining Paterno's legacy, much less in getting to the bottom of what went so wrong on the State College campus.

Nevertheless, lots of people stampeded to distance themselves from anything connected to Paterno (from a statue near the football stadium to an ice cream flavor), and Kirby Center staffers bolted, too. Tsk-tsk.

"The Joe We Know," based on interviews with former Nittany Lion football players, pays tribute to Paterno's impact on many of the young men he coached. The film was completed three days after the coach died in late January. It was screened privately by his widow, Sue Paterno, on her birthday: Feb 14, Valentine's Day.

It is an incomplete portrait of a man. It is one side of a multifaceted story.

Paterno's supporters as well as detractors should have been able to attend the Kirby Center's showing and draw their own conclusions. If so compelled, objectors should have picketed outside the venue. The arts, after all, can be messy, eliciting wide-ranging emotions.

At its best, the arts are bold. The arts can be thought-provoking, controversial, even challenging. The arts – or so we frequently hear when asked to donate to arts organizations – are intended to stimulate discussion and promote understanding.

In this case at the Kirby Center, there was no discussion.

Only silence.

Coalition offers packet of breast-feeding info

The Luzerne County Breastfeeding Coalition is developing a packet of breast-feeding education materials in recognition of the 2012 World Breastfeeding Week, Aug. 1-7.

Month by month, at each prenatal visit, a mother-to-be can become familiar with the normal course of breast-feeding an infant as she reviews this information with a health care provider. The health care provider can share information about why and, most important, how to breast-feed. Additional information is available for pregnant women who attend a breast-feeding class or a mother-to-mother breast-feeding support group.

Pregnancy is a time of preparation, change and learning about birth and parenting; it is important to add learning about breast-feeding to those preparations.

For more information on how breast-feeding can work for you and your baby, contact The Luzerne County Breastfeeding Coalition at 808-5534. The coalition is comprised of representatives from Northeastern Pennsylvania whose mission is to establish breast-feeding as the cultural norm in our community by advocating the promotion, protection and support of breast-feeding. Participants from area hospitals, Maternal and Family Health Services, the Pennsylvania Department of Health, Early Head Start, the Nurse-Family Partnership, the La Leche League and lactation consultants sit on this coalition. New members are welcome.

Natural gas industry monopolizes tax breaks

State Secretary of Revenue Dan Meuser recently characterized the Royal Dutch Shell ethane cracker plant proposed for southwestern Pennsylvania as potentially igniting a "new industrial revolution." Because of this, Meuser argues, Shell should be exempted from paying billions of dollars in taxes over the next two decades.

As Meuser makes clear, the proposed Pennsylvania Resource Manufacturing Tax Credit applies only to a plant that buys natural gas containing ethane, which essentially means that Royal Dutch Shell will receive substantial financial benefits that are not afforded to other industries in Pennsylvania. Because construction of the cracker plant is slated for an area that has Keystone Opportunity Zone (KOZ) designa-nation, Shell already is positioned to reap associated tax benefits. Thus, Shell will have the option to bestow its excess of tax incentives by selling PRM credits to gas-drilling companies.

Is it really necessary for Pennsylvanians to finance the extraction, transportation and processing of natural gas? The growth of this industry undoubtedly will be accompanied by serious environmental and health-related problems. Addressing these problems will require much money. At some time, Pennsylvania lawmakers will need to impose some sort of taxation to finance environmental restoration. This, of course, will outrage the anti-tax movement, thus renewing the political cycle that creates opportunities for people who represent multinational companies such as Royal Dutch Shell to attain positions of power. This is how the "1 percent" plays the game.

Meuser points out that, in order to attract an industry such as the Shell plant, Pennsylvania must compete against other states that offer similar tax incentives. This is not the only type of state-versus-state competition that has helped to pave the way for the natural gas industry. Because many aspects of the industry involve dangerous activities, states are encouraged to seek out the least stringent environmental safeguards. This is the reason why unconventional gas drilling has been exempted from compliance with federal water standards. The notorious "Halliburton loophole," politically engineered by Vice President Dick Cheney in 2005, is another example of how the "1 percent" plays the game.

Pennsylvania, as well as the rest of the world, does not need a new industrial revolution that is based upon the extraction and burning of fossil fuels.

What we need is an energy revolution – an acknowledgment that the quality of life for our children, and their children, depends upon the willingness of our leaders to confront ongoing problems that are a direct result of a fossil fuel-based world economy.

Where are the comparable Pennsylvania tax credits for the solar energy industry? The production, installation and maintenance of solar panels and related equipment have the potential to support a robust economy in which small businesses thrive.

Former Lehman teacher enjoys 'prestigious' affair

The Lake-Lehman School District community and, in particular, former band members, recently honored the esteemed, state-honored band leader John Miliauskas. The event was tops in every sense of the word. The committee is to be commended for the outstanding work it did. The accolades by the band members to Mr. Miliauskas were superb.

I was honored to be invited to this prestigious affair. My former students were so gracious to me. Thanks, Earl, for meeting me at the door and escorting me to your family and friends. I had tears in his eyes when Leo came to me and mentioned I was a tremendous influence on his becoming a lawyer. He mentioned the debates we had in my classes really influenced him.

Of course, it would take pages to mention all my former students who came to me with their success stories.

The Mahoney sisters were so concerned about getting me to my automobile, even escorting me to it. Debbie and David were excellent conversationalists at our table.

Our former students came from California, Michigan, Florida, New Jersey, New York and Maine.

I am proud to have had these students and been an influence on their lives. They are so successful. Being with them June 16 reminded me of my teaching days at that excellent school district; I consider Lake-Lehman students my family.

May more positive events keep happening in our schools.

OTHER OPINION: MEMBERSHIP BANS

Boy Scouts take intolerant path

THE BOY SCOUTS of America, an organization once known mainly for welcoming boys to a world of adventure, self-sufficiency and good citizenship, now is more famous for the groups of people it bans: atheists, agnostics and homosexuals.

It's been a sad evolution and an unnecessary one. The Girl Scouts, as well as international Scouting organizations, have carried out their similar missions without resorting to intolerance. By refusing once again this week to admit gay people to its ranks, either as Scouts or leaders, the Boy Scouts might have satisfied some of the religious organizations that sponsor many of its troops, but it risks long-term irrelevance.

Participation in its traditional Scouting programs has steadily declined over the last decade, by more than 15 percent, and is down more than 40 percent from the early 1970s.

Some people might believe that by banning people who are openly gay, the organization is keeping out sexual predators. But repeated studies have shown how false this assertion is. Besides, if that were the reason, what would be the point of prohibiting a lesbian woman from being a den mother, as the Boy Scouts have done?

The organization's marketing logo reads "Prepared. For Life." Unspoken but increasingly obvious are the added words "but only for some."

licly discussing the case due to a long-standing court-imposed gag order.

They walked out of the courtroom smiling.

Selenski did not seem to share Centini's concerns.

"I'll be ready," Selenski said as he was escorted by sheriff deputies from the courthouse. "She's (Centini) OK. She's not happy about it. She is more ready than all the other attorneys I've had put together. She's ready to go."

Selenski has been represented by eight different attorneys since the bodies of Michael Kerkowski and Tammy Fasset were uncovered in a shallow grave outside a Kingston Township house where Selenski lived on June 5, 2003.

Selenski has often quarreled with his former court-appointed attorneys.

More than 8 ½ years will have passed since the bodies were found to the trial date of Sept. 10.

Selenski was charged in the killings of Kerkowski and Fasset on May 16, 2006, which equates to 2,309 days from when he was charged to when the trial will begin.

"What cannot be ignored, judge, is the fact that this case has been pending for six years," Ferentino said. "Mr. Selenski has been afforded eight different competent lawyers and at one point he represented himself."

Ferentino said prosecutors had "serious concerns regarding the age of the case," noting several witnesses have died, another witness, Paul Weakley, was attacked several times in federal prison, and most recently, investigators discovered a murder plot by a former Selenski cellmate to kill Weakley.

Kerkowski's father, Michael Kerkowski, died in September 2006, and Brett Fry, a former Selenski cellmate, passed away several years ago. Two other witnesses, Ernest Culp and Rodney Samson, are in poor health, prosecutors said.

"A further delay in this case will be a great risk to our witnesses. We're playing Russian roulette," Ferentino said.

Centini said there is an enormous volume of evidence that needs to be reviewed, experts need to be hired to review physical evidence and with the resignation of Lampman the tasks fall upon herself and Rymsha.

"I can't be competent, I can't be effective if the trial is not moved," Centini said. "I've been working non-stop on this case, our entire team has. I cannot work any harder on this case."

BUYOUT

Ideas for Plainsville

Plains Township Fire Capt. Charles Krommes said ideas are surfacing for space from an expected 25 buyouts in the township, most in the Plainsville section.

Recreational fields, trails, a campground and boat launch are among the most popular suggestions, he said.

The township also may carve out an area along the Susquehanna that can be rented for events to help recoup some of the township's costs to maintain the added property, Krommes said. The land may be used for car shows, music festivals and farmers markets featuring produce from nearby fields, he said.

One plot of township land secured from buyouts in the late '80s or early '90s is used for soccer, he said. The soccer organization's portable toilet and soccer nets are removed before flooding. Temporary stages would be permitted on buyout property, he said.

Krommes plans more discussion on the vacant land at future meetings of Valley United, a group focusing on long-term flood recovery that includes representatives of the Federal Emergency Management Agency and several impacted communities.

"I think they're all going to put their heads together and generate ideas and figure out which options work best in their communities," said county Flood

PETE G. WILCOX/THE TIMES LEADER

Joe and Marion Cerna recently remodeled the living room in their Jenkins Township home that has been accepted into the flood buyout program.

Protection Authority Executive Director Jim Brozena.

Funding for buyouts

Brozena expects funding for at least 163 residential properties in eight municipalities that are receiving technical assistance from the authority, including Plains and Jenkins townships. More second-round buyouts may follow if funding is left, he said.

Plymouth Township is pockmarked with 17 empty lots from prior buyouts and seven more pending from buyouts in the works before the September flood, said township Supervisor Gale Conrad.

Property owners tore down four more, and another seven buyouts are expected to be finalized this fall.

The lots are scattered, and few, if any, provide enough space for large-scale public recreational use, Conrad said.

"Right now, we're just thankful we're getting more of our folks out of harm's way and into an area that doesn't flood," Conrad said.

At least 26 buyouts are expected in Conyngham Township – all in the Mocanaqua section.

Township officials have informally discussed the possibility of a seasonal campground, though the remaining Mocanaqua residents may come up with other ideas, said township Supervisor Ed Whitebread.

"We don't need any more playgrounds. Whatever is decided, we'll have to maintain it," Whitebread said.

Garden in Shickshinny?

Shickshinny residents and officials have tossed around many possible uses for at least 25 lots slated for buyout, including a community garden, camping area and athletic fields, said borough Secretary/Treasurer Melissa Weber.

Borough officials also plan to approach Northwest Area School District officials so see if they are interested in leasing space for sports teams to practice and play, Weber said.

Someone may be interested in using some of the land for horseback lessons and/or riding, she said.

"Right now, the major concern is how we're going to maintain the additional land with existing staff and resources," Weber said.

Community need and the configuration of the plots will drive options for future use, she said.

"It's like a little puzzle," she said.

Despite the maintenance challenges for their municipalities, Weber, Conrad and other municipal representatives encourage property owners to take advantage of the upcoming buyout offers. Property owners will be offered an appraised value.

"I hope they remember what they went through during a flood and locate in a better situated place where they're literally high and dry," Conrad said.

Cerna said he won't look back, because he's been trying to get a buyout for years. He's scheduled to meet with Brozena today to discuss some of the details of his buyout.

His property had 9 feet of water on the first floor in September, compared to 4 feet in the prior record 1972 flood.

He and his wife, Marion, used $38,000 in flood insurance money to gut and renovate the structure and replace appliances, but they can't relax.

"It will come again," he said. "My wife is still a nervous wreck."

is up 1.3 percent.

But more telling is the number of vehicles bearing out-of-state tags, often indicative of gas drilling company workers. In May, 19.1 percent of vehicles parking overnight at the airport had an out-of-state plate. In June, the percentage was 15.9.

"I think we're seeing a direct correlation with the Marcellus Shale decreases," said Lackawanna County Commissioner and Airport Board Chairman Corey D. O'Brien. "Our numbers have tracked with their trends."

Centini said that even with the recent declining parking numbers, he believes the expansion was prudent because if flights are added or drilling increases, the airport is ready. He said that for many months parking was close to capacity.

"Now," with 1,112 parking spaces, Centini said, "we're positioned for the future."

The airport shared the cost of the expansion equally with the Pennsylvania Department of Transportation.

Flights to Charlotte and Atlanta were added thanks to the drilling industry and Centini said they continue.

Centini said he hopes new Orlando flights operated by Alle-giant Airlines that began last month would help offset the loss from the drilling industry.

The airport board raised parking rates last month, though O'Brien did not believe the new rates were to blame for the parking decline. The board raised rates in the garage from $7.50 per day to $9 per day. Rates in the surface lot went from $6.50 per day to $7.

The board also agreed to sign a three-year contract with a new firm to provide armed and unarmed security at the airport.

The agreement, with King of Prussia-based Allied Barton Security Services, will cost $699,312 over the length of the contract, an average of about $233,104 per year. The current security provider, Century Security Services, charged $260,894.60 over the past year. It offered to provide services for another three years for $718,899.

'GHOST'

drivers were ever encouraged to pad passenger counts. "That was never a conversation anywhere," Strelish told The Times Leader on Tuesday.

Strelish said on Thursday that he has spoken with state officials on the allegations, but he couldn't comment on any investigation.

He did stress that padding senior citizen ridership numbers would have little impact on funding because those numbers account for only 10 percent of a complex formula used to factor funding. He said other ridership numbers account for 25 percent, the number of hours logged by bus drivers account for 35 percent and miles driven account for the remaining 30 percent.

"There would be no reason for management to encourage padding the numbers," Strelish said.

Even losing senior ridership would not harm authority funding because of a "hold harmless" clause in the state funding law, which states that transit system funding will not decrease from the prior year. "It would have to be an enormous increase either way," Strelish said.

Waters confirmed the formula percentages and said it would take "a fairly sizable fluctuation" in ridership numbers to have an impact on funding. Even if the authority received a 2 percent increase in annual funding, "only 10 percent of that 2 percent increase would have anything to do with senior ridership," she said.

The authority's state funding allocation in fiscal year 2010-2011 was $4,633,447. A 2 percent increase would equate to an additional $92,669; senior citizen ridership could only account for $9,267 of the total funding increase.

Conway also brought up the groping incident. Strelish said he couldn't comment because it was a personnel issue and referred comment to authority solicitor Joseph Blazosek.

Blazosek did not immediately return a message left at his law office Thursday evening, or a message left with a woman who answered the phone at his home, who said she doubted he would provide any information "because it really isn't any of your business."

Conway disagrees about the incident being a personnel issue.

"They should have called the cops. What's so difficult? (Strelish) wants to keep everything in-house," Conway said, likening the situation to the Jerry Sandusky/Penn State scandal.

Service members can march in uniform in gay pride parade

By JULIE WATSON
Associated Press

CAMP PENDLETON, Calif. — The Defense Department on Thursday announced it is allowing service members to march in uniform in a gay pride parade for the first time in U.S. history.

In a memorandum sent to all its branches, the department said it was making the allowance for San Diego's gay pride parade on Saturday even though its policy generally bars troops from marching in uniform in parades.

The Defense Department said it did so because organizers had encouraged military personnel to march in their uniform and the event was getting national attention. The move came only weeks after the Pentagon joined the rest of the U.S. government for the first time in marking June as gay pride month and made an official salute to gay and lesbian service members.

Defense Secretary Leon Panetta vowed in a video message to remove as many barriers as possible to making the military a model of equal opportunity and said gays and lesbians can be proud in uniform with the repeal last year of the "Don't Ask, Don't Tell" law.

Last year, San Diego's gay pride parade had the nation's largest contingency of active-duty troops participate before the military lifted its ban on openly gay service members. About 200 service members last year wore T-shirts with their branch's name.

Former sailor Sean Sala, who organized the military's participation in the parade, said he wanted service members to wear their official uniform this year to show there is no longer anything to hide.

policy, contract information, employee reports and personnel information.

Authorities also say she entered the district's email system by using the passwords of the superintendent and nine other district employees.

The investigation began on Feb. 24, 2012, when Assistant Superintendent Jennifer Holman reported that a former employee allegedly accessed the district's computer system using the superintendent's sign-in and password information, authorities said.

District officials had earlier suspected something was wrong when a high school principal called to report that some teachers were concerned that the superintendent was accessing the grading system to look at their grades.

Northwestern Lehigh Superintendent Mary Ann Wright said she was sick to her stomach when that call came in asking if she had been viewing student grades.

In fact, Wright never logged in to students' grades.

The February call, Wright said, triggered an immediate shutdown of the computer system. That month, district officials tightened security and log-in procedures, but didn't detail the new measures that were put in place.

"At the time, I didn't quite have a grasp of the scope of what happened, but I was immediately concerned for protected information," Wright said. "We shut down the system within three hours of learning there was a potential problem."

Venusto had been a secretary in the administration building, where her duties included creating the sign-on and password information for Wright and other school employees. After she left her job in April 2011, she continued using the superintendent's password, authorities said.

"When she resigned, we took her out of the system," Wright said. "Unfortunately she found her way around security protocol through unauthorized access to my information."

On Feb. 3, Venusto used the superintendent's information to enter the district's grade system and change her son's grade from a 98 percent to a 99 percent, according to court records. She did the same more than a year earlier, on June 16, 2010, when she allegedly changed her daughter's grade from an F to an M, or a medical leave, according to court records.

"We've been assured that those were the only two grades that were changed," Wright said.

The investigation included the use of court orders to obtain Internet-provider information of the person hacking into the computer system.

State police found that the school district had not changed any of its employee passwords since Venusto left her job.

Those court orders determined that Venusto used three different computers to gain access to the district's computer system - her home computer, one belonging to the East Penn School District and one associated with QVC, police said. After leaving the Northwestern Lehigh School District, Venusto had jobs with East Penn School District and QVC, a televised and online shopping network, police said.

The investigation showed that Venusto entered the district's grading system 110 times using the superintendent's password. It also showed she entered the district's computer system thousands of times, police said.

Venusto told police she never thought what she was doing was illegal. Unethical, she said, but not illegal.

Walk in the park has Scott in lead

By DOUG FERGUSON

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England — Unlike the guys in charge of the weather forecast, Adam Scott got everything just about right Thursday in the British Open.

Scott was determined not to take himself out of contention in the opening round at Royal Lytham & St. Annes, as he had done in the first two majors this year. Caddie Steve Williams gave him a pep talk to play the first hole like it was the last one. Even more inspiration came from the international flags posted above the massive grandstand down the left side of the first tee.

They weren't flapping. They were sagging.

In surprisingly calm conditions, Scott raced out to the lead and almost into the record book. He stood on the 18th tee needing a birdie to break the major championship scoring record, and instead made bogey to settle for a 6-under 64.

British Open Round 2
4:30 a.m. today, ESPN

It matched the lowest Open round ever at Royal Lytham and gave the Australian a one-shot lead over Paul Lawrie, Zach Johnson and Nicolas Colsaerts.

"It was just like a nice walk in the park today," Scott said. "And it was not what we've experienced in the practice rounds. I'm sure there's going to be some weather elements thrown at us the next three days, so just going to have to knuckle down to handle that. But I'm confident. My ball striking is good. I think I can get it around no matter what the conditions are."

The proof was in limp flags and red numbers on the scoreboards.

Scott was among three dozen players with rounds in the 60s, a group that included Tiger Woods. Trying to end a four-year drought in the majors, Woods raced out to four birdies in seven holes to take the early lead, only to settle into a series of pars and one adventure through grass up to his knees for a lone bogey that gave him a 67. In his third Open at Lytham, Woods said it was as easy as he had ever seen it play.

"The wind wasn't blowing, and we're backing golf balls up," Woods said. "That's something we just don't see."

Lawrie won his British Open in nasty conditions at Carnoustie in 1999, and the Scot showed he could handle the calm weather with equal aplomb. He ran

Saban: Tax PSU tickets to help kids

Alabama coach says punishment should have a positive result.

By JOHN ZENOR
AP Sports Writer

HOOVER, Ala. — Nick Saban said one option to address the Penn State tragedy might be a ticket tax on athletic events and giving the proceeds to child abuse funds.

The Alabama coach said the priority should be the same as in disciplining a player: Try to produce some good from a negative situation.

Longtime Penn State assistant football coach Jerry Sandusky was convicted last month of sexually abusing 10 boys, sometimes on campus.

"This is a very, very criminal situation that probably reflects poorly on a lot of folks," Saban told a small group of reporters before speaking at Southeastern Conference media days. "It's probably too almost raw to really have a feeling that I can express. I think that what we all should probably be thinking a little bit more about is what do we want to be the outcome of this? Something that's a win-win type thing, for kids in the future, the people that are there now, the players that are there now."

"Maybe they ought to tax all the tickets that they sell on athletics and give the proceeds to some child abuse organization. Or something like that, rather than worrying about some punishment that is really going to have no positive affect on anything."

SWOYERSVILLE – In three at-bats on Thursday, Swoyersville's Joey Gavenonis didn't take the bat off his shoulder drawing three walks.

Then in his fourth plate appearance, he only needed to see one pitch. And boy, did it count.

Gavenonis, a rising sophomore at Wyoming Valley West, crushed a first-pitch fastball with two outs in the bottom of the seventh to dead center at Roosevelt Field for a walk-off three-run triple to lead Swoyersville to the Wyoming Valley American Legion Junior League championship with a 5-4 win over Nanticoke.

"I just saw it keep flying and I didn't know what to do," Gavenonis said. "I saw it fly and thought 'oh it might be a home run' but doing that, a walk-off is insane right now. I can't believe I just did that."

Both teams advance to the regional tournament. Swoyersville will play in the Kutztown event, while Nanticoke participates in the regional at Freemansburg.

Swoyersville, which has been a dominant force in the league for the last handful of years, including a state championship in 2010, still has some magic.

"We had that feeling for the last four years that we're the team to beat around here," Swoyersville manager Bob Aten said. "We build our program. We go and play the best teams around the state in the regular season and it pays off in these types of games."

Nanticoke was on the verge of winning the league title, taking a 4-2 lead into the bottom of the seventh. Pinch-hitter Jason Wall led off the inning for Swoyersville reaching safely on an error. A walk to Justin Montalvo put runners on first and second.

But Nanticoke's John Wickiser settled down after that to get the next two hitters out. A walk to Logan Zava-da then loaded the bases to set the stage for Gavenonis, who was looking for a fastball and got it.

"You have the bases loaded, you know the pitcher wants to get the batter out so we told him go up and look for that first fastball and he drilled it," Aten noted. "That's what it's all about, somebody step up and get a big hit and Joey definitely did that for us."

A three-run inning of its own gave Nanticoke a 4-2 lead after six. There was controversy in the inning as Christian Pack scored after initially being called out at the plate. But he was

H.S. coach fabricating sex abuse is arrested

Fired Lansdale Catholic coach made anonymous claims against his counterparts.

By JOHN P. MARTIN
The Philadelphia Inquirer

Tim Udinski was livid. After one season as head lacrosse coach at Lansdale Catholic High School, he was out, ostensibly after conflicts with players and an assistant.

Udinski thought his dismissal was unfair, one the school wouldn't have considered for counterparts like veteran football coach Jim Algeo. So he launched a scheme to prove the point, authorities say.

Over seven months, Udinski allegedly sent anonymous e-mails to the Archdiocese of Philadelphia, claiming Algeo had solicited sex from a player and accusing the new lacrosse coach of sex assaults.

On Tuesday, Montgomery County prosecutors charged Udinski with harassment and stalking.

District Attorney Risa Vetri Ferman said his offenses were particularly galling because Udinski tried to manipulate a national spotlight on child-sex abuse in a vengeful bid to destroy reputations.

Detectives spent 184 hours on the case, interviewing students and staff and chasing the false rumors.

"The current publicity, it raises awareness, and that is a wonderful thing," Ferman said. "But the downside is that when accusations like this are made, they do so much damage. How do you undo that? How do you unring that bell?"

Udinski, 43, a Doylestown resident with years of coaching youth lacrosse around the region, confessed when confronted last month by detectives, according to an affidavit.

"I was mad at the school for the way I was treated. I was just furious," Udinski told them, the filing said.

The seeds of the plot may have been sown in March 2011, when Udinski himself was the target of false allegations. According to the affidavit, the parent of a Lansdale Catholic lacrosse player filed an anonymous complaint accusing Udinski of throwing a player to the ground and hitting another with a stick.

School officials suspended Udinski while they investigated. Ultimately, they deemed the claim unfounded and reinstated him as coach, according to the affidavit from Detective Drew A. Marino.

Christopher Froome, right, and Bradley Wiggins cross the finish line of the 17th stage of the Tour de France in the Pyrenees region of France on Thursday.

TOUR DE FRANCE

Wiggins says race is 'pretty much over'

With high mountains behind him, Tour leader should pull into Paris as champion.

BAGNERES-DE-LUCHON, France — Britain's Bradley Wiggins overcame the mountains and challengers to retain the yellow jersey, while Spain's Alejandro Valverde won the 17th stage of the Tour de France on Thursday.

After the last hard ascent, Bradley maintained his overall lead and said he sensed "that it was pretty much over" with just three racing days left. He's trying to become the first Briton to win cycling's biggest race.

Wiggins faces one last test — the individual time trial, his specialty — on Saturday.

Flat stages await Wiggins on Friday and Sunday, which features the ride to the finish on the Champs-Elysees in Paris. Those stages aren't expected to alter the standings.

He appears on pace to make some history: Wiggins would become the first Olympic track champion to become a Tour winner. He took the yellow jersey in Stage 7, and hasn't let go of it since. No rider has done that since France's Bernard Hinault held a lead from the same stage in 1981 all the way to the finish.

ON THE MARK

By Mark Dudek

Times Leader Correspondent

Wow, is the summer flying bye or what? Before you know it September and football season will be here! But don't wish it by too fast, July and August is some of the best times of the year for harness racing. Fast horses and fast miles has been the theme of the season, and I for one have loved what Pocono has brought this year to the track. Now if we can only get the takeouts lowered on the wagering end of it, we'd have a perfect world!

Don't forget there is no live racing next weekend due to the Summer Fest Concert being conducted at the track, meaning Wednesday, July 25 is your last day of live action until the horses return on Tuesday, July 31.

NATIONAL LEAGUE ROUNDUP

New York Mets starting pitcher R.A. Dickey delivers a pitch in the seventh inning against the Nationals on Thursday.

Wright and Dickey lead Mets vs. Nats

The Associated Press

WASHINGTON — David Wright homered twice and had five RBIs and R.A. Dickey won his league-leading 13th game and the New York Mets broke a six-game losing streak with a 9-5 win over the Washington Nationals on Thursday.

Dickey (13-1) pitched 7½ innings to break a streak of rare ineffectiveness this season. After throwing consecutive one-hitters last month, Dickey had won just one of four starts — getting no-decisions in three of them. In his past two, he gave up five runs in each game.

Against Washington, he gave up four runs — three earned — and 10 hits. He walked one and struck out five. Dickey has won 11 straight decisions. The Nationals' Ryan Zimmerman hit a first-inning home run, his 11th, and by the time Washington scored again, the Mets had an eight-run lead.

Reds 7, Diamondbacks 6

CINCINNATI — Brandon Phillips homered and had five RBIs, then scored the go-ahead run in the seventh inning on Todd Frazier's single to help the Cincinnati Reds rally from a six-run deficit to pull out a win over the Arizona Diamondbacks.

Braves 3, Giants 2

ATLANTA — Freddie Freeman and David Ross hit home runs as the Atlanta Braves made the most of their three hits to beat the San Francisco Giants to avoid a sweep.

Tim Hudson (8-4) helped an Atlanta bullpen that was drained by Wednesday night's 9-4 loss in 11 innings. He gave up eight hits and two runs in 7½ innings to outpitch Giants left-hander Madison Bumgarner.

Cubs 4, Marlins 2

CHICAGO — Paul Maholm pitched eight innings, Alfonso Soriano homered and the Cubs beat the Miami Marlins, ruining Mark Buehrle's return to Chicago.

Maholm allowed one run and four hits to win his fourth consecutive start, matching a career best. Including his first career relief appearance July 8 against the Mets, the left-hander has allowed just three runs in his last 30½ innings for an impressive 0.89 ERA over his last five games.

AMERICAN LEAGUE ROUNDUP

Ross' 3-run HR in 9th wins it for Red Sox

The Associated Press

BOSTON — Cody Ross hit a three-run homer with one out in the bottom of the ninth to give the Boston Red Sox a 3-1 win over the Chicago White Sox on Thursday night.

It came one night after Ross hit three-run homers in consecutive innings of a 10-1 win. Boston took three of four games in the series and is 5-2 since the All Star break.

It was the fifth loss in 13 games for AL Central-leading Chicago, which opens three-game series at second-place Detroit on Friday night.

Matt Thornton (2-6) got one out, but left with runners on first and second before Addison Reed faced Ross, who hit a 1-1 pitch into the Green Monster seats.

Rays 6, Indians 0

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. — David Price became the AL's first 13-game winner, B.J. Upton had three RBIs, and the Tampa Bay Rays beat the Cleveland Indians.

Price (13-4) allowed two hits over seven innings. The All-Star left-hander had seven strikeouts and three walks. Wade Davis pitched the final two innings and completed a two-hitter for the Rays.

Upton hit a three-run double off Ubaldo Jimenez (8-9) during a four-run sixth that put the Rays up 5-0. After getting two outs, Jimenez loaded the bases before giving up Upton's shot down the third-base line. Upton scored on Carlos Pena's RBI single.

Jimenez allowed five runs and seven hits in 5½ innings. He struck out five and walked five.

Tigers 5, Angels 1

DETROIT — Max Scherzer struck out nine and got plenty of run support as Miguel Cabrera and Alex Avila homered to lead Detroit.

The Tigers won the four-game series and have 10 victories in their last 12 games. The Angels have won just five of their last 13 games.

Scherzer (9-5) gave up only one run — on Mike Trout's homer in the sixth inning — three hits and four walks over seven innings.

Orioles 4, Twins 3

MINNEAPOLIS — Mark Reynolds' two-run single in the eighth inning backed a strong performance from Wei-Yin Chen and rallied Baltimore past Minnesota.

Chen (8-5) gave up three runs and six hits with five strikeouts in seven innings for his first win since June 17, and Jim Johnson picked up his 28th save in 30 chances for the Orioles.

Mariners 6, Royals 1

KANSAS CITY, Mo. — Felix Hernandez won his fourth straight decision and Jesus Montero homered and drove in four runs to lead Seattle.

Hernandez (8-5) is 4-0 with a 1.37 ERA in his past seven starts since a loss to San Diego on June 12. While he leads the majors with 143 strikeouts, Hernandez struck out only three, tying his season low. He allowed one run and eight hits, throwing only 89 pitches in eight innings.

Julia Franzosa
Hazleton Area
Franzosa earned her spot as The Times Leader Girls Track and Field Co-Player of the Year award with a state gold medal in the javelin. Seeded fifth in the Class 3A state championships, the Cougar senior tossed a 135-foot, 10-inch throw that was 3.5 inches farther than the competition. The Duquesne University field recruit claimed her second straight district crown in the javelin. Her previous best at PIAAs was 19th place as a junior.

Dannah Hayward
Coughlin
Hayward's electrifying win in the 300 hurdles at states punched her ticket as The Times Leader Girls Track and Field Co-Player of the Year. She won states with a 43.37-second finish, making her Coughlin's third-straight state individual champion. Hayward will run hurdles for St. Joseph's University next spring. She won her first district gold in the 300 hurdles this season. Her previous best at states was sixth place as a junior.

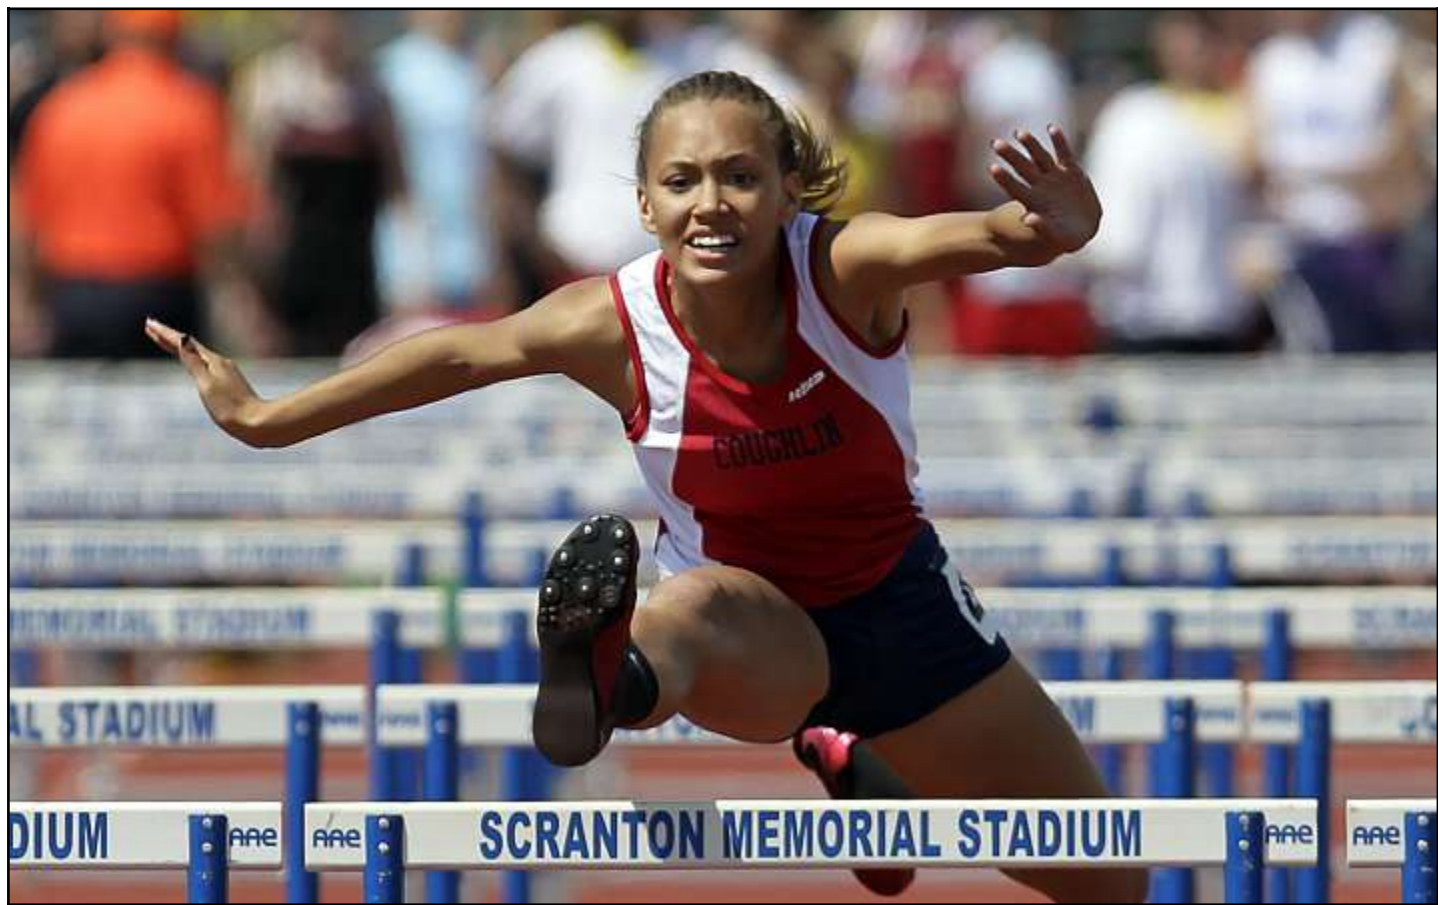

Regan Rome
Dallas
The Mountaineer sophomore continued her bright running career with a third place mark in the 3,200 run, capturing her second state medal in as many years at the varsity level. Rome clocked in a time of 10:44.3. She won district championships in the 1,600 and 3,200, but only ran in the latter at states. Her previous best in Shippensburg was sixth place.

Quieterriua Gross
GAR
Despite being upset at districts in the 100 hurdles, Gross rebounded to finish fifth at states to earn a state medal. The Grenadier sophomore completed the race in 15:47 seconds. She took 16th in the long jump at states - an event she won a district title in.

Melissa Cruz
Holy Redeemer
Cruz, a junior, came away from Shippensburg with a pair of state medals. She ran the 800 run with the sixth fastest time of 2:15.83, and her 3,200 relay team finished in sixth place. Cruz won a district championship in both events.

TIMES LEADER GIRLS TRACK ALL-STARS
Hayward and Franzosa named top track athletes

BILL TARUTIS/FOR THE TIMES LEADER

Coughlin's Dannah Hayward won the gold medal in the 300 hurdles at the PIAA Class 3A Track and Field meet.

It's two for the show

By JAY MONAHAN
For The Times Leader

It was a golden weekend for the Wyoming Valley Conference. It's not often that the WVC leaves the PIAA Championships with two individual state championships. Coughlin's Dannah Hayward's and Hazleton Area's Julia Franzosa's gold-medal performances in Shippensburg earn them The Times Leader Girls Track and Field Co-Players of the Year award. For both seniors, the award - as well as the elusive state medal - is an accumulation of four years of hard work on the track and in field.

Dannah Hayward
Hayward wants to make one thing clear - she is not following in any one's footsteps. For the first three years, Hayward hid behind former Coughlin three-time state champion Shelley Black's limelight in the hurdle events. When Black left the Crusaders for a track scholarship at Penn State, many unfairly compared Hayward to her mentor. "It was frustrating," Hayward said. "People would say I should run fast like Shelley, but that's unfair. She's not me, and I'm not her. Now my name is right next to her on the state championship banner at Coughlin, and it's gratifying to see that I conquered that feat on my own terms." Hayward did something Black could not do - win a state championship in the 300 hurdles in her senior year. She posted a 43.37-second finish, and claimed her second PIAA medal. "That's what I worked for since seventh grade," she said. "Everything I've done was towards that. It meant the world to me. I'm still in shock. It still hasn't sunk in. It's relieving that it was all able to work out so well. My hard work paid off." It was the run of a lifetime, and put her in a position that she could only dream of. With intentions of attending St. Joseph's as a walk-on track recruit, her championship-winning run provided her with a scholarship opportunity and a place on the team's roster. Hawks' coach Kevin Quinn had never seen Hayward run prior to Shippensburg. He was so blown away by her performance that he convinced the team's men's coach to transfer the remaining $15,000 in his budget to Hayward for a partial scholarship for her freshman year.

Julia Franzosa
Franzosa won a state title in the javelin. "He never saw me before so he couldn't I know I was that good. After the race, he told me that if he ever saw a perfect race, that was it." During the race, Hayward - the District 2 champion in the event - wasn't aware she was leading until after the final turn. "I felt like I was behind," she said. "That's what you need to do to motivate yourself during a race. You can't see who is behind you, but you can feel them there. It's very thrilling, but very scary at the same time. When you finally realize you're in first place and you have two hurdles left to go, you can't overreact." Hayward noted she has watched the tape of May's PIAA championships, and noticed what Coughlin coach Paul McGrane and Quinn told her after the race. "I usually don't feel confident because it's hurdles and there's no time to think," Hayward said. "When I watch the tape, it feels like I am confident. I can see in my form that it's the best that I've ever run. My heart pounds a mile a minute watching it." Julia Franzosa pionships with gold on her mind. After coming up short early on in the year and finishing 19th at states during her junior year, she was just hoping to medal in her last event as a Cougar. "In the beginning, I would've probably said there was no way that I was going to even medal," she said. "As the season went on, I thought a medal was possible. I was only seeded fifth coming in, so I didn't think I was in a position to win." A long shot at the No. 5 seed, the two-time District 2 javelin champ came away with a state title, hurling a 135-foot, 10-inch throw that beat the field by 3.5 inches. "It's still hard to believe," she said. "I have the medal in my room. Sometimes I need to look at it to make sure it's real." Franzosa's triumphant win is even more unthinkable considering she didn't come close to meeting her distance goals for the weekend. She was hoping that a 140-foot throw would put her in contention for a medal. "I was expecting more," she said. "I really wanted a 140. So I was shocked that I was able to win without even meeting my own personal goal." A throwing recruit for Division I Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, Franzosa focused her athletic abilities on the javelin. She quit volleyball and basketball to put track first, and teamed up with Hazleton Area coach Mark Otterbine to improve her strength. "It was a lot of hard work," Otterbine said. "She made her goal two years ago to medal at states. She devoted countless hours of work in the field, and it paid off for her in the end. This means a lot to this program to have this on our belt." Franzosa becomes Hazleton Area's first girls track and field athlete to win a PIAA championship.

Amy Viti
Hanover Area
Viti, a senior, raced to a third-place finish in the 400 run to earn her first career state medal. She completed the race in a time of 57.62 seconds. The Hanover Area mid-distance runner captured her first career Class 2A district title with a 57.56-second finish in the event.

Julia Wignot
Holy Redeemer
In her final meet as a Royal at states, Wignot medaled in the long jump, placing in seventh place with a leap of 17 feet and a quarter inch. She also came in 26th in the triple jump. Wignot came away with district championships in the long jump and 400 relay.

Fallyn Boich
Holy Redeemer
A junior thrower, Boich owned two district championships in the javelin and discus. She came 3 feet away from medaling at the Class 2A PIAAs with a ninth-place performance. Boich took 11th in the discus, passing her previous best by 10 feet, 4 inches.

Hilari Norris
Wyoming Valley West
Norris squeaked out a win over state champion Dannah Hayward in the 100 hurdles for a Class 3A district championship. The Spartan senior's preliminary time at states was eight-hundredths of a second short of qualifying for semifinals.

Tess Sauer
Meyers
The Mohawk senior swept the District 2 Class 2A sprints with wins in the 100 and 200 dashes. Sauer broke to semifinals in the 100 dash and finished in 15th place in 13.1 seconds. She took fifth in her heat in the preliminaries.

Jenna Nitowski
Holy Redeemer
Nitowski contributed to a 3,200 relay team that earned a state medal and a district championship. The Royal junior placed sixth at the Class 2A state championships with a 9:45.68 time, and ran away to a 14-second win in districts. The 3,200 relay team had the second-quickest time entering finals.

Gabby Alquire
Tunkhannock
The Tiger junior barely made her way to Shippensburg and came away with a state medal in the javelin. Alquire qualified by 3 inches with her district silver throw. At states, she tossed a 129-foot, 3-inch javelin that supplied her with a fifth-place medal. Together with Hazleton Area's Julia Franzosa, the WVC took two of the top-five spots at Class 3A states.

Mallory Kusakavitch
Holy Redeemer
Mallory teamed up with her sisters Melanie and Marnie (as well as Julia Wignot) to win a district championship in the 400 relay. Mallory, a sophomore, paced the Royals' 3,200 relay team to a state medal by finishing sixth with a time of 9:45.68. She also won a district gold in the 3,200 relay. She finished fifth in the 800 run at districts.

Cassandra Gill
Holy Redeemer
A junior, Gill came away from the District 2 Class 2A championships with three gold medals with wins in the 1,600, 3,200 and 3,200 relay. She was part of a 3,200 relay that garnered a state medal with a sixth-place performance with a 9:45.68 time. She placed 14th in the 3,200 run with a time of 11:49.96.

IN BRIEF

NBA
Jeremy Lin lands in Houston

HOUSTON — Jeremy Lin figured he'd be having this kind of news conference in New York. Instead, he was talking about his new deal with the Houston Rockets on Thursday on the same practice court where he worked in virtual anonymity seven months ago before he was waived.

Lin said he expected — and even preferred — to be resigned by the Knicks after he electrified the city last season before he was sidelined by a knee injury. The point guard says he wouldn't have signed the Rockets' three-year, $25 million offer sheet "if I wasn't excited about the possibility of playing here as well."

Lin says the Rockets made a compelling pitch. And he says he's "texted back and forth" with former Rockets All-Star Yao Ming.

OLYMPICS
USA Cycling offers $100k for gold

USA Cycling will reward gold medalists at the London Olympics with $100,000 in bonus money through a new incentive program, The Associated Press has learned.

The "London 100K Challenge" will be the richest known Olympic reward program put forward by any cycling organization in the world. The program includes $75,000 bonuses for silver medalists and $50,000 for any athlete winning bronze.

The program, which is being funded by USA Cycling, the U.S. Olympic Committee and the USA Cycling Development Foundation, is expected to be officially announced next week.

The American team has gold medal aspirations in several events, among them Kristin Armstrong, the reigning gold medalist in the women's time trial.

US men top Britain

MANCHESTER, England — Carmelo Anthony and Deron Williams responded to lineup change with 19 points apiece, and the U.S. men's Olympic basketball team beat Britain 118-78 on Thursday in an exhibition game.

LeBron James added 16 points and Russell Westbrook had 15 for the Americans, who built a 40-point lead early in the fourth quarter against their inexperienced and overmatched opponent, and every basket from there seemed to be a dunk.

U.S. coach Mike Krzyzewski changed up his starting lineup, inserting Kevin Durant for Anthony, and Williams for Chris Paul, and both Anthony and Williams flourished in their new roles.

GOLF
Bohn takes first-round lead at True South

MADISON, Miss. — Jason Bohn shot an 8-under 64 to take an early lead at the PGA Tour's True South Classic before heavy rain halted play in the afternoon.

Luke Guthrie, a 22-year-old in just his third professional tournament, opened with a 65. He finished last week's John Deere Classic tied for fifth.

J.J. Killeen, Steve Lowery, Ryuji Imada, Jason Gore and Willie Wood share a tie for third, two shots behind Bohn.

After a week of rain, Annandale Golf Club's fairways were soft with areas of standing water. The PGA allowed players to lift, clean and place balls in the fairway, helping scores stay low.

Officials say the first round will resume Friday at 8:30 a.m.

Locals land on national Jr. field hockey teams

The Times Leader staff

Four local field hockey standouts were named to U.S. Junior National squads following a training camp at the University of Massachusetts.

University of North Carolina star Kelsey Kolojechick, a Wyoming Seminary grad from Larksville, earned a place on the U21 Junior National team. The 2011 Atlantic Coast Conference Offensive Player of the Year and a three-time college All-American will be invited to the University of Maryland in August for a training camp for the Junior Pan American Championships in Mexico from Sept. 8-24.

Nanticoke alum and Old Dominion standout Kati Nearhouse, a two-time All-American, will be added to the U21 National team on Jan. 1, 2013.

Former Crestwood High teammates Anna Dessoie, a freshman at Maryland, and Jess Newak, a freshman at Wake Forest, earned berths on the U19 National squad.

southwestern town of Bagneres-de-Luchon to the ski station of Peyragudes on Thursday featured three hefty ascents in the Pyrenees and an uphill finish.

Valverde, the Movistar leader who returned from a two-year doping ban this year, won his third Tour stage in a breakaway. Christopher Froome of Britain was second, and Wiggins was third, both 19 seconds back.

Overall, Wiggins leads Sky teammate Froome in second by 2 minutes, 5 seconds, and Italy's Vincenzo Nibali trails in third, 2:41 back, after losing 18 seconds to them in the final ascent.

A 2-minute lead after nearly 80 hours of racing and 2 1/2 weeks might not seem like much of a margin. But in stage races like the Tour, the strategy of success for a leader is keying on his closest rivals.

Wiggins wasn't much worried about any other riders. After Nibali and Froome, his next closest challenger was Jurgen Van Den Broeck, who was 5:46 back, a deficit almost impossible to erase without a collapse by Wiggins.

Defending champion Cadel Evans of Australia, after dropping out of contention in the first Pyrenean day on Wednesday, lost more time and trailed by 9:57. Still, he rose to sixth overall, after Spain's Haimar Zubeldia lost nearly a minute to the Australian.

American Tejay Van Garderen — a BMC teammate of Evans — rose a notch to fifth, and was 8:30 back.

Valverde, with tears in his eyes in the winner's circle, had a rough start to the Tour with at least three crashes. He also sensed Wiggins and Froome closing on him at the end of the stage.

"I went all out," said Valverde, who also won stages in the Tour Down Under and the Paris-Nice races this year. "When I saw there were only 700 meters left, I was really really happy".

One of Sky's dilemmas was exposed on Thursday: Froome entered the day clinging to an 18-second lead over Nibali, and he was looking for any chance to gain time on the Italian.

On the final ascent to the Peyragudes, Froome tried to gain time on Nibali, but also repeatedly spoke with Wiggins and even gestured with his hand for the Sky leader to come along.

"Chris encouraged me, saying 'Come on, come on,'" Wiggins said. "He's really strong ... he can win the Tour one day."

The fog-shrouded stage in the Pyrenees led the peloton, depleted by crashes and sickness, over three big climbs. Those included the Port de Bales, one of cycling's hardest, and two lesser ones.

The Alabama coach didn't go into details of how a tax would be implemented. He stressed his comments had to do more with philosophy than a real recommendation.

"I probably shouldn't have said that. I'm just a regular old coach," Saban said. "I worry about what they do on third down. A lot of times we do the same thing with players. Everybody's always worried about what's the punishment? The way I try to always look at it is, what's the outcome? What outcome do we want? Sometimes I even say that to the player, what outcome do you want? Do you want to graduate from school? Do you want to play in the NFL some day? If that's the outcome that you want, this behavior is not becoming of that. So what do we need to do to make it better?"

A report said university officials, including former football coach Joe Paterno, concealed child sex abuse allegations against Sandusky more than a decade ago to avoid bad publicity.

Saban, who has led the Crimson Tide to two national titles in the past three seasons, also said any perception that football coaches wield too much power doesn't apply at Alabama. Saban, however, has been described as the most powerful man in sports.

He also said he has faith that Alabama tries "to promote the moral obligation that we all have to protect other folks."

"I can't speak for everybody, but I can speak for the University of Alabama," he said. "I think if we had any kind of issue it would not be my decision as to what we did. It would be a bigger decision than me, and I would want it to be that way. I have total faith, trust and confidence in (university system Chancellor Robert) Witt, that we would make the decisions with the utmost honesty and integrity and sort of moral ethics as we possibly could."

"Everybody has a responsibility and obligation to represent their institution that way, and I believe in that."

ruled safe after fielder's interference was called. That tied the score at 2-2 with no outs in the top of the sixth. Mat Kuhl accounted for the last two runs in the inning driving in Jack Windt with a single then scoring on a wild pitch. That seemed like it would be the clincher for Nanticoke.

"We were riding pretty high (entering the seventh)," Nanticoke manager John Pack said. "With our number one the mound, we had a lot of confidence entering that last inning."

"They beat our best. Congratulations to Swoyersville, they earned it. I know we're both going on, but we were both playing this game to be the Wyoming Valley Junior League champs."

Kuhl (2-for-3) also added an RBI-single in the first inning to put Nanticoke ahead 1-0 right out of the gate. Swoyersville evened the score at 1-1 in the bottom of the second on a run-scoring single from Andrew Semanek. Ryan Hogan's sacrifice fly in the third gave Swoyersville a 2-1 lead.

Gavenonis also pitched 5 ½ innings for the winners. Despite getting rattled in the sixth, he allowed two earned runs and three walks striking out five. He handed the ball off to Chris Lupole, who picked up the win striking out four of the five batters he faced and not allowing any baserunners.

Nanticoke's starter Mike Blazaskie, who was on a four-inning limit due to previous appearances in the tournament, gave up two runs and three hits while fanning five.

of Prussia communications company where Udinski worked earlier this year as a salesman.

There, they found proof that Udinski had been using his company-issued laptop computer at the same time each e-mail was sent, the affidavit said. When they confronted him, he allegedly confessed.

"I just wanted to get back at the church, Tim Quinn, and I was just generally mad," he told Marino, the detective's affidavit said.

Udinski was arraigned Tuesday before District Judge Harold Borak and released on $25,000 unsecured bail. He faces a preliminary hearing July 27.

Archdiocese and school officials praised the county investigators for their commitment to solving the case.

Quinn and Lansdale Catholic president Jim Casey said they were relieved the ordeal was finally over.

"It's been difficult on the staff, [and] it's been difficult on the students most especially," Quinn said. "They've been interviewed three times by D.A.'s detectives. I think that's where a majority of the angst was."

off three birdies over the last five holes. Johnson, who won the 2006 Masters in the wind and cold at Augusta National, flirted with a major record-tying 63 until a bogey on the 17th hole. Colsaerts, the big hitter from Belgium, holed out with an 8-iron on the 481-yard second hole for eagle and added four birdies for his 65.

Brandt Snedeker was another shot behind at 66.

"We had a little wind early on the front nine, but it kind of calmed down the second half," Snedeker said "That's the best Americans are going to see over here."

Rory McIlroy was panned last summer at Royal St. George's for saying he prefers calm conditions, so maybe this was more to his liking. He wound up in the group at 67 after a wild day filled with great shots, bad luck and a bump on the head for a 16-year-old spectator standing in the wrong spot.

McIlroy was at 3 under with four holes remaining when his drive on the 15th hole sailed to the right of the fairway. It plunked the teenager in the head and caromed farther to the right. The teen was OK. The ball settled a few inches beyond the out-of-bounds stakes near a corporate tent, sending McIlroy back to the tee to play his third shot. McIlroy gave the lad a glove on which he wrote "Sorry" with a frown face and "Rory."

"He could have headed it the other way," McIlroy joked later. "It would have been on the fairway."

He bounced back from that double bogey by driving the 336-yard 16th hole and two-putting for birdie, then making birdie on the final hole to join guys like Ernie Els, Masters champion Bubba Watson, Graeme McDowell and Steve Stricker, who followed an eagle from the 13th fairway with a double bogey on the next hole.

One sign of the easy scoring was that no one shot in the 80s. That hasn't happened in the opening round of the British Open since 1998 at Royal Birkdale, where conditions also were benign. Woods opened with a 65 that year, only to get blown away in bad weather the next round.

Perhaps bad weather is on the way. The forecast hasn't been nearly as accurate as Scott was with his tee shots on Thursday — sunshine when it calls for rain, clouds when the forecast is for dry spells.

Els and his caddie, Ricci Roberts, figured out immediately that dead calm translates to low scores.

"It's on today," he said. "I said to Ricci, 'I might not have the chance again.' You never know how the weather is going to be."

But even in such weather suited for low scores, Lytham still required tee shots in the fairway. It still demanded good shots. And it was a struggle for some.

Lee Westwood, despite a birdie-birdie start, hit a bunker shot across the third green to take double bogey, and had to play a left-handed shot out of the back end of a pot bunker on the 13th hole as he staggered to a 73. Luke Donald made a sloppy bogey — his only one of the round — on the final hole for a 70. Justin Rose played in the same group as Woods and already was nine shots behind after eight holes. He rallied for a 74.

Lytham was there for the taking — as long as the tee shots found the fairway.

Phil Mickelson, a runner-up at Royal St. George's last year, went from the left rough to the right rough on the par-5 seventh to make double bogey on the easy hole at Lytham. On the next hole, he tried to hit wedge out of a pot bunker and it got snagged in high grass just over the lip. A small search party nearly didn't find it, and Mickelson had to take a penalty shot to drop it back in the fairway.

"I putted poorly today and I drove it horrific and the chipping was below average," he said.

Scott had no such issues. After an early bogey when he got out of position on the third hole, he warmed up with birdies on the sixth and seventh holes, and then ran off three straight birdies on the back nine, starting with the 598-yard 11th hole that he reached in two shots.

Good start not good enough for Tiger

By DOUG FERGUSON

LYTHAM ST. ANNES, England — Tiger Woods hit every tee shot exactly where he was looking, needed only eight putts through seven holes and reached 4-under par to quickly get his name atop the leaderboard Thursday in the British Open.

It looked like he was just getting started.

Instead, he stalled.

On as easy a day as Royal Lytham & St. Annes can provide — soft fairways and greens, little evidence of wind — Woods had to settle for a 3-under 67 that left him three shots behind Adam Scott.

Woods looked like he was capable of running away from the field with those four early birdies to take the lead. He narrowly missed a 10-foot birdie putt on the par-3 ninth hole for a 29, which would have been his lowest nine-hole start in any major.

"We knew that we needed at least to get off to a quick start on that front nine, and I figured a couple under would have been good," Woods said. "But I look up on the board and Scotty is going pretty low, and so is everyone else. I felt I had to make a few more, and I was able to."

He covered the flag with his tee shot on the par-3 12th hole, leaving himself 12 feet below the hole. But when he walked onto the green, he saw a leaderboard packed with names. His was not at the top, rather somewhere in the middle.

Scott already was at 6 under and challenging the major championship record of 63. Bubba Watson, Graeme McDowell and Zach Johnson, all of them major champions, also were at 4 under with plenty of birdie holes ahead of them.

Perhaps it was just a coincidence, but what followed was Woods' worst putt of the round.

That's when Woods shifted in to neutral. He gave himself reasonable chances, and kept leaving putts short.

"I was just lacking a little bit of pace on the greens coming home," he said.

One of the best shots he hit all day kept was on the only hole where he failed to make par — and it saved him from a much higher score.

Woods worked out a game plan that looked similar to what he used at Hoylake five years ago when he last won the British Open. He rarely hit driver off the tee in an effort to avoid bunkers, only this was different. Royal Lytham's bunkers are staggered in the fairway, and they are everywhere. Woods didn't just stay short of them, he navigated his way expertly through them.

He hit a driver on No. 2 and a 5-wood on No. 10 that started left and over the heads of the spectators, only to curve gently back to the right and into a perfect spot.

He appeared to be in complete control off the tee, which is pivotal for any good round at Lytham.

IN BRIEF

Report: 1.8% growth here

The economies of the nation's cities are starting to bounce back from the recession and grow again, but the state and federal governments need to increase their spending on infrastructure to help that growth continue, according to the U.S. Conference of Mayors, which released an economic report Thursday.

The report, prepared by IHS Global Insight, forecasts that 300 of the country's 363 metropolitan areas will experience real economic growth by the end of the year. The total gross metropolitan product grew by 1.7 percent last year; this year, the report predicts, the average growth of all 363 areas will be just below 1.8 percent.

The report said GMP rose 0.9 percent in the Scranton/Wilkes-Barre market in 2011 and projected growth of 1.8 percent in 2012.

Nexstar buys 10 stations

Nexstar Broadcasting Group Inc. said Thursday it had entered into definitive agreements to acquire 10 television stations and associated digital sub-channels from entities controlled by privately-held Newport Television LLC. Nexstar, which operates WBRE and WYOU in the Wilkes-Barre/Scranton market, also will acquire Newport's Inergize Digital media operations.

Among the newly acquired stations are WBGH and WIVT in Binghamton, N.Y., and WETM in Elmira, N.Y.

The acquisition will raise Nexstar's portfolio of stations that it owns, operates, programs or to which it provides sales and other services to 67 in 40 markets, reaching approximately 11.4 percent of all U.S. television households.

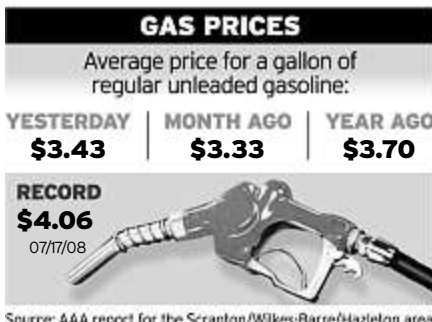

Pa. jobless rate up 0.1%

Pennsylvania's seasonally adjusted unemployment rate was 7.5 percent in June, up one-tenth of a percentage point from the May rate, the state Department of Labor & Industry said Thursday.

It was the first increase in Pennsylvania's unemployment rate since July 2011. The rate was down 0.5 percentage points from June 2011.

The number of unemployed Pennsylvania residents was up 13,000 to 488,000.

Seasonally adjusted nonfarm jobs within Pennsylvania were up 14,600 in June to 5,729,700, the highest since December 2008 and the first increase in three months.

An attendant serves snacks and drinks on a high-speed Spanish train between Madrid and Valladolid. With smooth rides, no long waits in security lines and fast trips, high-speed trains have replaced airplanes as the most-popular mode of travel on many routes in Europe. Foreign builders are touting an incremental approach to high-speed rail in the U.S.

Getting up to speed

By PAUL NUSSBAUM
The Philadelphia Inquirer

PHILADELPHIA — Can you have a European- or Japanese-style high-speed rail experience, even if the train is creeping along at less than 150 miles per hour?

Yes, say international manufacturers who are touting the prospects of smooth, quiet, luxurious rides for American passengers, even though it will be many years, even decades, before 220 mph bullet trains show up in the United States.

“Higher-speed” trains with many of the same aerodynamic features and interior amenities of France’s TGV or Japan’s Shinkansen may be the American stepping-stone to true high-speed rail, as the United States looks for affordable improvements to its old-fashioned, slow passenger rail network.

Foreign-based high-speed train builders, such as Alstom (France), Siemens (Germany), and Talgo (Spain), have opened American factories to make modern trains that can run on conventional tracks in the United States, with hopes of eventually winning high-speed contracts, as well.

Many of the manufacturers are in Philadelphia this week, showing their wares at the eighth World Congress on High-Speed Rail.

“We are bringing technology from Europe to the U.S. and engineering it here,” said Stephen Robillard, vice president of high-speed rail for Siemens. Siemens hopes to sell its RailJet, capable of running at 160 mph, for use on existing American routes.

Alstom has a train factory in Hornell, N.Y., that makes and refurbishes railcars. It could also be the home of future high-speed train construction.

“We’re taking the incremental approach,” said Alstom spokesman Timothy Brown. “You have to get out of the all-or-nothing mode.”

Brown said the “aesthetic experience” of traveling on lighter, quieter, sleeker trains, even at a mere 110 to 125 mph, could build support in the United States for true high-speed trains, those traveling up to 220 mph.

Walgreen, Express Scripts sign new agreement

By MARLEY SEAMAN
AP Business Writer

The Walgreen pharmacy chain will begin filling prescriptions from customers in the Express Scripts network again starting in September under a new multi-year contract that ends a costly impasse between the companies.

The agreement announced Thursday follows a series of disputes between Walgreen and Express Scripts that ended with the discontinuation of the contract between the drugstore operator and the pharmacy benefit manager last year.

And Walgreen's biggest drugstore rival, CVS Caremark, said it thinks it will keep a lot of the former Walgreen customers that it has won over the past year.

The developments illustrate the dexterity that providers are going to have to play to compete effectively in a rapidly changing health care marketplace.

Shares of Walgreen Co. jumped $3.65, or 11.8 percent, to $34.62. CVS shares fell $3.02, or 6.2 percent.

Express Scripts administers prescription drug benefits for health plan sponsors and members, and it pays drugstores like Walgreen to fill prescriptions. The companies said in a statement Thursday that Walgreen will rejoin the network of pharmacies available to Express Scripts customers starting Sept. 15. Terms of the new contract were not disclosed.

Analysts said Walgreen probably made the biggest concessions in the deal because the split hurt its business more than it hurt Express Scripts.

CVS Caremark said it expects to keep at least half the business it gained from Walgreen starting in late 2011 when the defections from Walgreen started ahead of its split with Express Scripts.

NOTICE OF THE LUZERNE COUNTY
TAX CLAIM BUREAU

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that Northeast Revenue Service, LLC as agent for the Luzerne County Tax Claim Bureau will hold a JUDICIAL SALE under the Pennsylvania Real Estate Tax Law of 1947, as amended, commencing 10:00 A.M. the 23rd day of August, 2012 in the Luzerne County Courthouse, 200 North River Street, Wilkes-Barre, Pennsylvania. The properties exposed to sale will be sold Free & Clear of all tax and municipal claims, mortgages, liens, charges and estates of whatsoever kind, except ground rents separately taxed.

IT IS STRONGLY URGED that prospective purchasers have an examination made of the title to any property in which they may be interested. Every reasonable effort has been made to keep the proceedings free from error. However, in every case the Tax Claim Bureau is selling the TAXABLE INTEREST and the property is offered for sale by the Tax Claim Bureau without guarantee of warranty whatever, either as to structure or lack of structures upon the land.

There will be NO REDEMPTION PERIOD after the date of the sale, but these Taxes and Costs can be paid up to the time of the sale.

In accordance with Section 619.1 of the Real Estate Tax Sale Law, 72 P.S. § 5860.619a, prospective purchasers at all tax sales are required to provide the following certification to the Tax Claim Bureau:

- 1.that, within the municipal jurisdiction, such person is not delinquent in paying real estate taxes owed to taxing bodies within Luzerne County; and
- 2.that, within the municipal jurisdiction, such person is not delinquent in paying municipal utility bills owed to municipalities within Luzerne County.
- 3.Pursuant to, prospective bidders must certify that they have not had a landlord license revoked in any municipality in Luzerne County and that they are not acting as an agent for a person whose landlord license has been revoked.

In accordance with Section 618 of the Real Estate Tax Sale Law, 72 P.S. § 5860.618, the owner shall not be permitted to repurchase said property.

TERMS OF SALE: Payment of the bid price along with transfer taxes and recording costs shall be due and owing as soon as the sale is completed. In the event that said amount is not paid before the close of business on the day of the sale, the sale will be voided.

In the event that a successful bidder tenders a bad check to the Tax Claim Bureau when purchasing a property in any sale the bidder shall not be permitted to bid on any properties in future sales and the matter shall be referred to the Luzerne County District Attorney's Office for prosecution under the Pennsylvania Crimes Code, 18 Pa. C.S.A. § 4105 which may lead to a CONVICTION OF A FELONY OF THE THIRD DEGREE.

INSTRUCTIONS: Any person whose property is included in the list and being exposed to Public Sale, who believes that by no reason of some defect said property should not be exposed to sale, should immediately make known their reason to the Tax Claim Bureau, either in person or by agent.

Northeast Revenue Service, LLC
Agent for the Luzerne County Tax Claim Bureau
Sean P. Shamany, Director

The County of Luzerne does not discriminate on the basis of race, color, national origin, sex, religion, age, disability or familial status in employment or the provision of services.

Any questions regarding the Judicial Sale should be directed to the Luzerne County Tax Claim Bureau at (570) 825-1512.

Prospective bidders must register prior to the sale. NO REGISTRATION WILL BE TAKEN ON THE DAY OF THE SALE. Registration and Certification forms are available in the Tax Claim Bureau and online at www.luzernecountytaxclaim.com. All Prospective Bidders must present one (1) form of photo identification at the time of registration and on the date of the Sale. Failure to present photo identification at the time of registration will prevent a Prospective Bidder from being registered to bid. Failure to present photo identification on the date of the sale will prevent the bidder from receiving his bidder number and thus barring the registered bidder from having the opportunity to bid on property.

Petitioner exposed certain parcels of land to Upset Sale on September 22, 2011 continued to and conducted on November 10, 2011 and April 12, 2012, upon delinquent tax claims filed for the tax years, inter alis,. Notice of the Upset Sale was advertised in The Times Leader on August 22, 2011 & March 9, 2012 , Standard Speaker on August 22, 2011 March 9, 2012 and the Luzerne Legal Register on August 19, 2011 & March 9, 2012.

An upset price was set for each such parcel exposed to sale, in accordance with the Act, however the following properties were not sold at the Upset Sale, because the upset sale price was not obtained:
