Did You Know?

With its six time zones, Canada has the third highest number of time zones of any country in the world. No country has more than Russia, which boasts 11 time zones. Sandwiched between Russia and Canada is the United States, which has nine time zones. In Canada, there are six time zones moving east to west: Newfoundland Standard Time (NST), Atlantic Standard Time (AST), Eastern Standard Time (EST), Central Standard Time (CST), Mountain Standard Time (MST), and Pacific Standard Time (PST). Many of these areas remain on standard time all year-round, choosing not to participate in Daylight Savings Time. These include areas of Quebec, east of 63 degrees west longitude, most of Saskatchewan, and Southampton Island.

Drinking And Driving Penalties Back In Full Force

British Columbia's tough administrative penalties for drinking and driving return to the roadside on June 15, backed by a more fair, rigorous roadside and appeal process that became law this spring.

The procedural changes preserve the life-saving, deterrent value of Canada's toughest provincial penalties for alcohol-impaired driving, which first came into effect in September 2010. The BC government's goal of reducing impaired driving fatalities by 35 per cent by the end of 2013 has already been surpassed. Our most-recent analysis shows that we have significantly exceeded the initial targets. Compared to the average over the previous five years, alcohol-related motor vehicle deaths have dropped by 44 per cent since the law came into force- with an estimated 71 lives saved.

The amendments to the Motor Vehicle Act respond to a BC Supreme Court ruling that the original administrative review process did not provide a driver with the ability to meaningfully challenge the "fail" result of a roadside breath test.

The amendments also enhance the fairness of both roadside and appeal processes. The following conditions now apply, regardless of whether a driver provides either a "warn" or "fail" breath sample at the roadside:

- Police must advise drivers of their right to a second breath test on a second approved screening device (ASD). In the past, officers were not legally required to inform drivers of this right.
- Police must tell drivers that the lower of the two readings will prevail. Previously, the results of a second test prevailed, whether higher or lower.
- Grounds for administrative review now include the reliability of the ASD results, whether police advised the driver of his or her right to a second test, whether police conducted that second breath test on a second ASD, and whether the IRP was issued on the basis of the lowest reading. These grounds reflect the expanded requirements of police officers at the roadside.

Guard Your Child From Computer Eye Damage

Did you know that the average North American child spends from one to three hours per day with his or her eyes on a computer screen? The startling increase of nearsightedness (myopia) in children worldwide may be a direct consequence of this activity, pediatric eye doctors say.

"In fact, children using computers before their visual systems are fully developed are at the very heart of the public health problem called 'computer vision syndrome,'" says Bijan Minbashion, vice president of operations for Hakim Optical, a national leader in retail eye care. "A study at the University of California reports that 25% to 30% of computer-using children need corrective eyewear to work with the equipment comfortably and safely – and similar studies in Asia report that first-graders with myopia has increased from 12.1% to 20.4% since 1995. In the last three years, myopia is reported to have doubled to 34% in seven- to nine-year olds."

To guard against early damage to your child's eyes, consider these Hakim Optical tips:

- Schedule a comprehensive eye exam as your child enters kindergarten, including near-point (computer and reading) and distance testing.

- Schedule an eye exam before school begins every year.

- The recommended distance for children between the monitor and the eye is 18-28 inches. Any closer risks eye strain.

- Be aware of behaviour that indicates problems such as eye redness, frequent rubbing of the eyes, unusual posture, or complaints of blurriness or eye fatigue.

Grads Set For Careers In Tourism Industry

BC's tourism industry will have more than 100,000 job openings over the next eight years, and graduates of Selkirk College will be uniquely positioned to secure key management positions.

Bob Falle, Chair of the college's School of Hospitality and Tourism, said more than 90 per cent of Selkirk's hospitality and tourism graduates obtain work in their chosen fields. A recent report by go2, the BC tourism industry's human resource association about burgeoning growth in the province's tourism industry, suggests no shortage of work or advancement opportunities for the coming decade.

"The Tourism Labour Market Strategy, released June 4 by go2, projects a need to recruit and train qualified people to keep pace with incredible growth being projected for the industry," said Falle. "An estimated 44,220 tourism and hospitality positions will be new by 2020 and the other 57,000 openings will be replacements for retirees. This is a golden opportunity for people contemplating lifetime career plans, and it should be known that two of every three new jobs will require postsecondary training."

Selkirk College graduates approximately 60 people each year in four program areas that feed directly into tourism and hospitality. The Resort and Hotel Management and Ski Resort Operations Management Programs are two-year diplomas. The Culinary Management Program is one year, which can be taken full or part time, and the Professional Cook Training requires 42 weeks to complete over two years.

"Our programs are time efficient and involve real-world work-term experience," said Falle. Graduates in Resort/Hotel and Ski Resort Management work quickly into all levels of management and across a wide range of areas from marketing to human resources, to guest services and food and beverage. Culinary Management and Professional Cook grads are also in great demand with tremendous potential for steady, gratifying employment in restaurants, major resorts, hotels, hospitals and camps. "All programs are offered at the college's Tenth Street Campus, Nelson, B.C.

"Hospitality and tourism operations need people with great business and management skills to lead a fast-growing and competitive industry, and that's precisely what our curriculum gives them," he said. "We do get student's right from high school, but our programs are especially well suited for those who have tourism and hospitality experience but who see the need to improve their skills in order to move into key management positions. The programs also appeal to people who currently own or operate existing businesses but who will benefit from knowledge and skills upgrading."

Falle said Selkirk grads are in very high demand already, but competition for qualified people is going to become even greater. "Canada has weathered a few years of slow labour growth, but now the tourism industry is poised to expand, with labor shortages already being felt in Northern BC and in the Rockies regions. By 2016, the crunch will be acute, so we are doing everything to prepare more people." The go2 report projects that more than 80 per cent of tourism's new job openings will be in food and beverage services (43,410 openings), recreation and entertainment (20,530 openings) and the accommodation sector (18,920 openings).

There is still time for people to register in these programs for fall 2012. Details can be found at www.selkirk.ca, the School of Hospitality and Tourism.

As residents emerge from a wet spring, the recent heat will drive people to enjoy the beautiful beaches and shorelines of Kootenay Lake. The Kootenay Lake Partnership will soon release some user-friendly material that outlines procedures and best practices for development along the lake's foreshore and riparian areas. More information on this can be found at the KLP's recently launched website at www.kootenaylakepartnership.com. The website provides a platform for information-sharing and notices regarding lake-management planning. The foreshore and riparian areas are of particular interest as the water-land interface is a zone of high biodiversity, captures fish-rearing grounds, nesting areas for waterfowl, and potentially hosts First Nations archaeological and traditional/contemporary use sites.

While lake levels remain high, the KLP recommends the following tips for local residents and visitors to love the water, and share the responsibility to care for it:

- Boaters are encouraged to watch their wake while water levels remain high to avoid damage to private property and to be cautious of submerged structures that are normally visible.

- People exploring the wetted shoreline should consider other users of this area such as waterfowl, amphibians and fish that may have experienced difficulty in nesting, breeding or foraging this spring;

- See how native vegetation protects the shoreline from erosion and provides habitat!

The KLP will continue to work towards developing a collaborative framework, to solidify intergovernmental relationships and to develop sound science for lake management planning.

Contact Ryan van der Marel, KLP Chair and Coordinator at 250-505-7666 or email: klp.coordinator@gmail.com

Owen's Angels Raffle

When Owen Condry-Page was born in March of this year, things looked bright for him and twin sister Serenity. His mother, Angela Condry, was proud of the two newest members of her family. Multiple births are hard on relationships and Condry's partner left before the twins were a month old. Condry was on her own raising three children with help from her mother Rosemary Goulart and stepfather Tony.

But in May Owen got sick with meningitis. He was airlifted to Children's Hospital in Vancouver and it took nearly two weeks before the doctors could control his seizures.

Owen had suffered brain damage and the doctors were not sure if he would be able to breathe on his own. When Owen was taken off the respirator on June 6 he kept on breathing. He was then moved to Sunnyhill Hospital in Vancouver for rehabilitation. Owen was tested and he has some vision. He has lost most of his hearing and will be fitted for hearing aids soon. Owen needs ongoing therapy and will have to go down to Vancouver for checkups to monitor his progress.

On July 20 Owen came home to Castlegar. They say it takes a village to raise a child. Right now thanks to Facebook, a global village has been keeping track of Owen's progress.

Some of the village started to raise money to help. A group called Owen's Angel was formed and decided to hold a raffle.

First and second prize are Encore Voucher round trip tickets from Trail to Vancouver courtesy of Pacific Coastal Airlines. Third prize is a hand carved paddle by Haida artist Don Pongracz, a former resident of Castlegar, fourth prize is a ball chair and a massage supply package courtesy of Joanna Linardis, RMT, and fifth prize a $250 gift package donated by Pets Needs Plus. The giving did not stop there, as Hall's Printing stepped up to donate the cost of printing the tickets.

"This area has the most generous heart," said Sheila Seymour, Owen's 93 year old great-grandmother. Growing up in the Kootenays she has seen this area's capacity for helping.

All funds raised from the raffle will go into a trust account to help Owen. Tickets are $2 each or 3 for $5. The draw date is September 4. Tickets are available at Pet Needs Plus in Trail, TeeJays in Castlegar and at Teck's Trail operation and at Local 480 Hall in Trail. Volunteers will also be selling tickets at other locations. If you just want to make a donation they can be made to Owen Condry-Page trust account KSCU Trail Branch Masterplan Account 1415793.

Columbia Basin Culture Tour

The Columbia Basin Culture Tour allows you to explore artists' studios, museums, art galleries and heritage sites during this free, self-guided event. Travel to studios and archives that aren't normally open, see demonstrations, new exhibitions and collections or meet people behind the scenes. To participate in the tour, simply grab a map, your Culture Tour Directory and go! The tour takes place August 11-12, from 10 am to 5 pm,

Roseland artists Tricia Rasku and Stephanie Gauvin will be opening their working studios for the Culture Tour. At Tricia's busy studio there will be demonstrations for those of you who wish to know about fibres, weaving, spinning, felting, and the benefits of handmade soap. Meet painter Stephanie Gauvin, who illuminates the scenes she paints with her own mix of vivid, rich, bold, and often contrasting colours. Her studio displays a selection of original paintings, giclee prints, posters and art cards. Rouge Gallery is located in a historical Roseland building and features local artists who work in a variety of media from acrylics, watercolours and egg tempera, as well as photography, fibre, clay, porcelain, and sculpture. Joining the tour this year is Alley Cat Glass Workshop, owner Christy Holden describes her love of her craft: "A glass artist's vision lies somewhere between the photon wave a scientist observes when light travels through glass, and the simple appreciation of shape and colour we feel for the glass we use and handle daily."

In Trail visit RJ Photos where you will find a wonderful selection of treasures including magnets, postcards, t-shirts, lavender bath salts, lavender pouches, desktop calendars, matted and or framed photography. You can request a wheel demonstration at Pottery by Fran and will be able to view a variety of Fran's finished pottery as well as view pots in the various stages of creation. Visit Diane Oser, a painter who creates abstract and representational work in oil, watercolour and mixed media. On Cedar Ave in Trail you will find Something Sweet Creative Studio - Sugar Shack Quilting, where Tina Ihas lovingly creates a selection of soft toys, bags, and other useful items using recycled upholstery fabrics and clothing, including a line of original quilt patterns.

Selkirk Weavers and Spinners Guild, Venue# 14 Castlegar

In Montrose stop by The Art Shack Studio and Gallery and meet artist E. Rebecca Leeworth. At this venue you will have the privilege of watching this artist at work, painting with oils and acrylics and also designing and creating crocheted hemp items.

Opposite the airport in Castlegar, the Doukhobor Discovery Centre is a 'Traditional' Village that features over 1,000 artefacts. There will be guided tours at 11 am and at 3 pm for Culture Tour visitors. This is also the home of the Selkirk Spinners and Weavers Guild, who will be demonstrating the various techniques of making fabric, from preparing and spinning fibres to yarn, setting up a handloom and weaving cloth. They also feature a lovely gift shop, full of handcrafted work. Just down the road is The Kootenay Gallery of Art, a principal gallery for the visual arts within the West Kootenay region. It provides a professional venue for regional as well as national artists to show and sell their work. A wonderful gift shop on site features the work of over 100 local artists and craftspeople.

In the Robson area, visit Sandra Donohue who paints still life, landscapes, and florals in a representational style using mainly watercolour and acrylic, and some pastels. Just a little further down the road meet Mirja Vahala at Inspiring Minds Fine Art. Enjoy a tour of Mirja's personal studio plus 1000 sq.ft workshop instruction studio and view her colourful landscapes and 'mindscapes'. In Salmo at Joe's Art Gallery you will find a warm welcome from artist Joe Horvath who loves to share the art that he enjoys so much creating. There will be an assortment of large and small pictures and also a collection of rocks on display.

Tour brochures are available at tourist information centres and participating venues. Visit the website at www.cbculturetour.com to view full artist/venue profiles for further details on each location's activities or register to receive a tour brochure in the mail. For further information, call the CKCA at 250-505-5505 or toll free at 1-877-505-7355. The Columbia Basin Culture Tour is generously supported by Columbia Basin Trust funding.

- Police officers must provide sworn reports to the superintendent of motor vehicles for every immediate roadside prohibition (IRP) they issue - increasing the evidentiary standard of the officers' submissions.
- Police officers must also submit documentation attesting to the calibration accuracy of the ASD device or devices that were used.

These changes mean, effective June 15, IRPs resume as an alternative to the full Criminal Code process for drivers found in excess of the legal limit of .08 per cent blood-alcohol content at the roadside- the default approach for police since the court ruling last November.

CBT Helps Communities Apply For Federal Funding

Columbia Basin Trust (CBT) has set aside $530,000 to support communities applying for the federal government's Community Infrastructure Improvement Fund (CIIF).

On July 5, the federal government launched CIIF, a new program that will invest $150 million across Canada, with $46 million dedicated to Western Canada, over the next two years. CIIF focuses on rehabilitating and improving existing community infrastructure that is non-commercial and accessible to the public, such as community centres, cultural centres, parks, libraries, recreational facilities and tourism facilities, as well as other existing community infrastructure assets which have a local community impact such as connectivity and broadband and local airports.

"This is a unique, one-time opportunity for CBT to provide matching grants to help communities leverage federal funding to improve infrastructure in our region," said Neil Muth, CBT President and CEO. "It's an extremely short timeline for groups to respond; that's why we're also offering funding to hire support to assist groups in meeting the deadline."

Applicants, including local governments, First Nations and non-profits, must leverage at least 50 per cent of the total eligible project costs through funding from sources other than the federal government, and projects requesting less than $250,000 will be given priority.

CBT will make a maximum overall commitment of $500,000 and support any successful application to a maximum of $50,000 per project (up to 50 per cent of the communities' required portion). Project selection will be based on the CIIF criteria and CBT's support will be conditional until approval from CIIF is confirmed.

CBT will also assist applicants in submitting their CIIF applications to meet the August 2, 2012 deadline by making funds available (maximum of $2500/application) for communities to hire someone to assist in compiling the required information for submission to CIIF. A maximum of $30,000 has been committed for this form of support.

For more information about CBT funding and support, call 1-800-505-8998 to be connected with a Community Liaison.
