Welcome to IDC Publishers General Catalog 2006-2007

I am very pleased to present you this General Catalog from IDC Publishers, the first since the company was acquired by Brill in January 2006. This catalog is also the first complete listing of all currently available and forthcoming IDC publications since 2001, as well as Brill's major online databases and electronic resources.

IDC: a new imprint of Brill

IDC's thematic primary source collections contain unique materials, such as rare books and archival documents from libraries and archives around the world. These sources are essential tools for researchers in the humanities and the social sciences. Combining IDC's primary sources with Brill's secondary publications opens a world of new possibilities for librarians and scholars. Brill has been known for decades for its essential source publications of the Nag Hammadi texts and the Dead Sea Scrolls. Through the acquisition of IDC's collections Brill is now able to offer primary sources and research collections from antiquity to the present day. It is our mission to make these sources not only available, but also searchable in the best ways possible. This is why we highly value the importance of metadata in the form of MARC21 or EAD bibliographical records. Furthermore, Brill offers a wide range of reference materials, both online and print, such as encyclopedias, dictionaries, and bibliographies.

Digitizing the past

The millions of pages of text contained in IDC's collections are particularly suited for digitization and online publication. All new publications are digitally captured and stored while making use of state-of-the-art technology. This makes it possible to publish this content both in digital and analog media, and through publishing-on-demand. We welcome your feedback on our electronic publications and would like to talk to you about your wishes for digitization. Digitizing current microfilm or -fiche collections you have purchased from us in the past means protecting your library's investment, while at the same time offering online accessibility to these collections for your patrons. This solution combines both your library's preservation needs with much improved accessibility and functionality.

IDC's Digital Library

In November 2005 IDC launched its Digital Library platform. Through IDC Digital Library, it is now possible to access (a selection of) our collections online. Current and future IDC collections will therefore be made available in both digital (online/local hosting) and analog (microform/paper) format. Searching in the metadata is free of charge. Access to the available titles is possible on a subscription basis. IDC has developed an ambitious program to digitize many of its existing collections and add these to the Digital Library in the near future. For more on DigiLib (see p. 2)

Other online products include important databases such as Comintern Online (see page 3), Taxonomic Literature (see page 4) and Art Sales Catalogues Online (see page 4).

E-archiving

In order to address the concern of long-term archiving solutions for our electronic publications Brill is investigating several e-depot possibilities, among others it has started a partnership with the Koninklijke Bibliotheek (National Library of the Netherlands) in The Hague. This library has developed a digital information archiving system which ensures long-term access to electronic publications deposited in the library's e-depot.

We at Brill look forward to developing and expanding IDC Publishers publication program and to serving your information needs for many years to come.

Sincerely,

Hans van der Meij
General Manager
IDC Publishers

The mission of IDC Publishers to take history into the future has been given a new dimension. With the launch of its Digital Library, IDC now offers previously released IDC collections and new academic research materials in digital format.

The Digital Library is IDC's response to the academic market's request for digital access to our many valuable primary sources.

TAKE A CLOSER LOOK AT HOW WE DIGITIZE THE PAST

THE DIGITAL LIBRARY

The Digital Library (DigiLib) consists of two levels: A free metadata level and a subscription level, where users have access to the collections they have subscribed to.

Items can be searched on author, title, place, year, subject, language, keyword, and source holder. The result of the query leads to the original documents.

PUBLICATION SCHEME 2006

The aim is to provide online access to over twenty collections containing about 25,000 titles by the end of 2006.

GET FREE ACCESS TO ALL METADATA

Register at www.idc-digilib.nl and register to get free access to the metadata of all the collections included in the Digital Library.

FREE TRIAL

Free trials are available to institutions on request at sales@idc.nl.

MORE INFORMATION

For more information on subscription rates, consortium prices or access, please contact sales@idc.nl.

COMINTERN online

Online access to the most epochal archives of the 20th century

WWW.COMINTERN-ONLINE.COM

The archives of the Communist International (Comintern) have been kept hidden away for many years. They are shrouded by rumor, conjecture and myth, yet it is impossible to write 20th-century history without them.

The Comintern archives are held in the Russian State Archive of Social and Political History in Moscow, and contain 55 million pages of original documents in almost 90 languages covering the entire period during which the organization was active (1919-1943).

Access to this indispensable source of information— around 10 kilometers of shelving classified as “top secret” — was virtually impossible for many years. Comintern Online now enables you to digitally access:

- free online inventory to the complete Comintern Archives
- subscription service to 1.2 million digital images of the most consulted and fragile documents

The subscription database will be continually updated, increasing the number of documents available online.

Much of the research that has been carried out in the field of art history would have been impossible without the use of art sales catalogues. Furthermore, the use of historical art sales catalogues would never have been possible without the impressive four-volume reference work, Répertoire des catalogues de ventes publiques intéressant l'art ou la curiosité, created by Frits Lugt. IDC Publishers have combined the strengths of art sales catalogues and Lugt's Répertoire in their new online database Art Sales Catalogues Online.

Art Sales Catalogues Online provides easy access to thousands of complete art sales catalogues from the period 1600 to 1900. Lugt's Répertoire online is the "entrance gate" to Arts Sales Catalogues Online, but is also available as a separate online database.

ONLINE ACCESS TO THE COMPLETE WORK

Taxonomic Literature, 2nd. ed.

IDC Publishers, in close cooperation with the International Association for Plant Taxonomy (IAPT), is proud to present the online version of the famous taxonomic work by Prof. Frans Stafleu et al.: Taxonomic Literature, 2nd Edition.

The online searchable database includes scans of the more than 10,000 pages of the 7 volumes and 6 supplements of this extensive work.

History of Modern Russian and Ukrainian Art 1907-1930, Part 1

Advisor: Charlotte Douglas

The collection documents the history of modern Russian and Ukrainian art. It encompasses critical literature, illustrated books, and art periodicals. The collection contains texts by such artists as Wassily Kandinsky, Pavel Filonov, Kazimir Malevich and Anatolii Petrytskyi; publications of art groups such as the Jack of Diamonds (Bubnovyi valet) and Makhovets; theoretical tracts by Nikolai Tarabukin and Boris Kushner; and books by well-known critics such as Iakov Tugendkhol'd, Erikh Gollerbach, and Nikolai Punin. The collection also offers a selection of early 20th century art-related serials. These historical sources of pre- and post-revolutionary art reflect the diversity of artistic thought in the first thirty years of the 20th century and the intense discussions about the nature of the new art, its form, and its aims.

- 65 monographs and 41 serials
- Number of titles: 106
- Number of fiche: 1,794
- List price EUR 12,109.-/ US$ 16,146.-

Armenian Architecture

A documented photo-collection for the study of the Early and Late Medieval Christian Architectural Arts of Transcaucasia and the Middle East

Advisor: Prof. V.L. Parsegian (†)

The roots of Western architectural art, including early Christian art, are often to be found at the Transcaucasian and Middle East crossroads where the Armenian homeland was frequently meeting ground for both ideologies and conquerers. The conversion of the Armenian nation to Christianity (in AD 301 or soon after) added a new dimension to the exchanges, particularly because the conversion inspired an Armenian drive for ethnic identity through architectural arts and scholarship.

- Number of titles: 7
- Number of fiche: 930
- List price EUR 7,207.-/ US$ 9,997.-

Georgian Architecture

Van Gulik Music Collection

Advisors: Joyce Y.T. Wu and John T. Ma

Dr. Robert H. van Gulik (1910-1967) occupied an extraordinary position among all Western sinologists. He was an accomplished scholar, an outstanding linguist, diplomat and an expert book collector.

When his collection of books was acquired by the Sinological Institute of the University of Leiden, The Netherlands, in 1977, it contained more than 2,500 titles in nearly 10,000 volumes.

For this publication the editors have selected the most interesting, important and unusual music scores and music books from his collection.

Jewish Theater under Stalinism: Moscow State Jewish Theater (GOSET)

Introduction by Dr. V. Ivanov

In their time, the Moscow State Jewish Theater (GOSET) and the affiliated Moscow State Jewish Theater School (MGETU) were outstanding phenomena. GOSET was a pioneer enterprise that merged Yiddish art with Soviet ideology and avant-garde ideas. The character of the theater was determined by a galaxy of outstanding Jewish writers, actors, and artists of the 20th century, namely Marc Chagall, Aleksandr Falk, Peretz Markish, Solomon Mikhoels, and many others. The archival collection from the Russian State Archive of Literature and Art (RGALI) in Moscow contains unique material on Jewish avant-garde art, Stalin's repressions, history of Soviet culture and theater and also deepen and revise our understanding of the Kremlin's policy toward Jewish society and culture, and the everyday life of Jews in the 1920s-40s.

NEW COLLECTION 2006

British Intelligence on the North West Frontier, Afghanistan, c. 1900-1950

Advisor: A.J. Farrington

Fascinating materials, documenting British attempts to impose "order" on the tribal territories in the North West Provinces. In sometimes eerily recognizable policy initiatives, the records detail imperial struggles with jihadist movements, and show how local leaders were able to stay out of British hands - sometimes for up to fifteen years. The North West Provinces were held to be crucial in the defence of British India against (Soviet) Russia and the Chinese.

British Intelligence on Russia in Central Asia

Advisor: Penelope Tuson

There is an increasing interest in the development and history of Central Asia. Especially during the late 19th century and the first half of the 20th, it was among the most disputed regions in clashes between empires and ideologies. This collection presents the intelligence gathered by the British India Office on the political, economic, strategic and social history of these territories. Materials and files were labelled Secret, Confidential, or For official use only; they cover the period 1865-1949. Also available on microfilm.

British Military Intelligence on China, and the Boxer Rising: c. 1880-1930

Remarkable Series of Secret Gazetteers of the Provinces of China, Confidential Print and Intelligence Reports

Advisor: A.J. Farrington

Troops and ships from India played a significant part in the two British wars on China in 1840-42 and 1857-60. In the second half of the 19th century, although 'Imperial policy' towards China rested with London (Foreign Office, War Office and Admiralty), British India came to be recognized as a 'forward player' and substantial authority, given its close involvement over borders stretching from Sinkiang to Upper Burma.

NEW COLLECTION 2006

British Intelligence on Siam (Thailand) and Mainland Southeast Asia, c. 1887-1948

Advisor: A.J. Farrington

British India played an important "forward" role in British relations with Thailand, not least in countering the perceived "threat" from French Indo-China. Materials cover British-French policies and attempts to steer local politics into a "favorable" direction. Growing attention was dedicated to countering nationalism and communism in the area. The last set of files and print document the rising influence in Japan, the Second World War, and its immediate aftermath. Classified print and about 100 files. Drawn from various record groups in the India Office's Political & Secret files.

Colonial-Period Korea

Rare sources from the C.V. Starr East Asian Library

IDC Publishers has released a new microfiche collection of highly valuable primary sources on the history and culture of Korea. The present collection brings together three distinct groups of publications dating from this colonial period. It includes Japanese publications on Korea, Western (mostly English) early impressions of Korea, and Korean colonial-period literature. All materials included are drawn from the holdings of the C.V. Starr East Asian Library at Columbia University, New York. Some of the materials included are exceptionally rare. Others are rapidly deteriorating due to age, poor quality paper, and other causes. All are highly valuable (primary) sources for scholars of Korea and things Korean. The collection is particularly important and timely because it preserves the intellectual content of publications which are at risk of disappearing for good - many of these volumes are unavailable anywhere else - and because it makes rare materials more readily accessible to a larger audience.

Taiwan's Opposition Magazines

Tangwai ('outside-the-party') opposition magazines in Taiwan

Advisor: Reverend Edward Kelly

During the period between 1975 and 1986, a number of magazines were published in Taiwan, collectively known as Tangwai (outside-the-party) magazines, to indicate that they originated outside the ruling Nationalist Chinese Kuomintang (KMT) party. The magazines have in common that they voiced opposition against the single-party rule of the KMT and advocated democracy and respect for human rights on the island, which had been under martial law since 1949.

NEW COLLECTION

Describing Papua New Guinea, 1945-1975

Interviews on the History of Ethnographic Description

(Transcripts)

Advisor: Dr. Sjoerd R. Jaarsma

This collection of interviews provides an overall image of the setting for ethnographic descriptions of Papua New Guinea (PNG) between 1945 and 1975. Between 1993 and 1996, the editor of this collection conducted a series of thirty-four interviews related to the interviewees' involvement in describing the indigenous population of PNG, during the last decades of Australian colonial rule over the area. The objective of this collection is to make the implicit explicit: it describes how ethnographic data regarding PNG were collected, interpreted and analyzed between 1945 and 1975.

- Scope: 29 interviews

Memories van Overgave: New Guinea

Retrospective reports by Dutch civil servants in Indonesia, these briefings contain important source materials for those who research the local, social, political and economic history of Indonesia. The Memories were used to brief newly appointed officials about their assigned administrative area. They cover the entire Indonesian Archipelago.

IDC Publishers has now selected the Memories pertaining to (Netherlands) New Guinea. This includes reports up to the 1950s and 1960s. The documents provide details of the period in which Dutch authorities attempted to keep New Guinea independent from Indonesia, which had been granted sovereignty in 1949.

- List price EUR 1,387.-/ US$ 1,914.-

Travelogues: the Pacific

IDC Publishers has selected travel reports by missionaries and other travellers who explored the Pacific in the eighteenth and nineteenth century.

Travelogues feature among the mostly studied primary and secondary sources in researching contacts and interactions between Western travellers and indigenous societies. In many cases, they provide unique insights into these encounters, and often they represent the only windows for studying approaches to and consequences of such intercultural meetings.

Inevitably skewed toward the culture of Western travellers, travelogues often contain important observations and data on native societies. Since many of such communities were subsequently deeply altered, travel reports are highly coveted for their potential to contribute to reconstructing the types and characteristics of aboriginal communities.

Selections from Despatches to the Government of India

Introduction by Lionel Carter

Secretary of State for India in Council, 1858-1936. Under the Government of India Act of 1858 a ministerial office was instituted known as the Secretary of State for India in Council. The new office was established on 1 September 1858 and the despatches in these fiches are from that date. They cover the 'high noon' of British rule in India as well as the start of its decline. By 1858 the despatch had already come to have an important and clearly established role. It was the most formal means of communication between London and its governments in India. Despatches were used for a wide range of purposes. They sought or provided information; they could ask for advice; most importantly they laid down and explained the British government's policies, big and small, over the whole area of its administration. The India Office series, reproduced here on microfiche, are 'out' despatches only.

Selections from the Records of India 1849-1937

From the India Office Library and Records, British Library

Advisor: John Sims

New introduction by Lionel Carter

346 volumes of documents dated between 1849 and 1937, pertaining to a variety of aspects of the history of the British administration in India. "Selections from the Records" was a title used by the provincial governments of India for papers intended for circulation among officials and the public. The series was at first envisaged as being appropriate for documents too brief or otherwise unsuited for separate publication, but each government quickly adapted the series for its own purposes, and in some cases they included substantial reports or collections of correspondence.

South Asia

Advisor: Henry Scholberg

This impressive collection of almost 1,100 titles, contains periodicals and monographs, mainly concerning South Asian history, archaeology, literature, sociology, political science, law, economy, and missionary archives. The cumulative catalogue is a user-friendly research tool. The titles are presented in a logical, well-arranged manner to enable researchers and librarians to find the sources they are looking for easily and efficiently. Some of the features of this edition are:

- Rearrangement according to subject headings
- Expansion by more than 300 titles
- Annotations to most newly added titles
- Listing of the number of microfiche for each item
- Greatly enlarged section devoted to Missions - Inclusion of detailed index (8 pp.).

- Number of titles: 1,061

Girolamo Savonarola, Religious and Political Reformer

The Incunable Collection of the Württembergische Landesbibliothek, Stuttgart

Advisor: Dr. Peter Amelung

Girolamo Savonarola (1452-1498) was among the first authors of the late fifteenth century to acknowledge the importance of printing as a means of propagating his ideas. Many regard him as one of Luther's predecessors; Luther's reformation movement certainly helped Savonarola's writings remain popular well into the sixteenth century. The rise of Florentine book illustrations is also closely linked with the dissemination of Savonarola's writings, since most contemporary editions feature at least one woodcut. This collection contains the complete incunabular section of the Stuttgart collection, offering over two hundred incunables by Savonarola and his adherents and opponents. It is of interest to theologians, historians, art historians, and book historians.

The Catholic Reformation

Advisor:
Prof. dr. Paul Richard Blum

This collection features the major publications brought forth by the Catholic Reformation of the sixteenth to the eighteenth centuries. The emphasis is on philosophy, theology and controversy. The collection also includes biographies of major and minor figures of the Catholic Reformation in France. Many of these sources have never been reprinted; yet they are indispensable tools for a precise understanding of the period between the end of the Middle Ages and the Enlightenment.

French Diocesan Catechisms, 1615-1900

Advisor: Prof. dr. Paul Richard Blum

Published in the course of the last five centuries, catechisms constitute a treasure that can be exploited in multiple ways: they inform us about the presentation of God, of the church, and of the sacraments of course, but also about pedagogy, conceptions of man, prohibitions and values, and ways of living in a society. In the history of a country or a culture the catechism is an indispensable source for an understanding of how the sense of existence and representation of the world are transmitted from one generation to another. This remarkable collection of French diocesan catechisms, published between 1615 and 1900, enables scholars to study the diverse influences and currents, innovations and repetitions, in these documents, and thus to uncover all that they have expressed from the Christian and social-cultural points of view.

The World of Port Royal

The Jansenist Movement in the Catholic Church, 17th-18th Centuries

In the seventeenth century, a heated theological debate raged in Catholic Europe over the role of divine grace and the efficacy of good works in obtaining salvation. The position taken by the so-called Jansenists, centred in France around the Parisian convent of Port Royal, was deeply pessimistic, as opposed to that of the Jesuits. Condemned by Louis XIV and the Papacy, Port Royal was closed in 1709 and many French Jansenists went into exile abroad.

This remarkable collection of letters and other documents owned by the old Catholic Church of the Netherlands and held by the State Archives in Utrecht, is an indispensable source for study of the Jansenist movement.

Anti-Calvin: The Catholic Response to Calvin's Writings in Sixteenth-Century France

Advisor: Dr. Malcolm Walsby

Protestant authors had grasped the importance of winning over the souls and minds of the French people from the outset and the production of Genevan presses was therefore predominantly in French. If the Catholic Church wished to preserve its position in France, it was vital to respond to the gauntlet thrown down by the Calvinist leaders. It is this response, the writings of the French Catholic authors against Calvin and his teachings, that are presented here. It includes both works attacking the precepts of Calvinism and those defending the Catholic doctrine against the criticism and condemnation of Calvinist authors. The selection concentrates on issues that divided the church. The titles have been selected from the University of St Andrews French Vernacular Book Project.

Works by Caspar Huberinus

Advisor: Prof. dr. Gunther Franz

Among scholars dealing with studies on the history of the Reformation there is a growing consensus that not only the great reformers, but also the other theologians who popularized and propagated Luther's teaching are worthy of attention. One such figure is the all but forgotten Caspar Huberinus (1500-1553), whose works are of greatest importance for the history of spirituality. The selection of the titles for this collection is based on the bibliography Huberinus-Rhegius-Holbein by Gunther Franz.

Philipp Melanchthon, Theologian and Humanist

Advisor: Prof. dr. Timothy Wengert

Philipp Melanchthon (1497-1560), reformer and humanist scholar at the University of Wittenberg, was one of the towering figures of Reformation and Renaissance. His writings, covering the fields of language and logic, were enormously popular – if judged only by the number of times they were reprinted. His stances on religious issues of the day led to his rapid development from noted Greek scholar to lightning rod of the Reformation. A polymath, he commanded respect in more fields than any other Protestant thinker of the time.

This research edition offers works otherwise inaccessible to scholars unable to travel to the handful of specialized libraries and museums collecting Melanchthon's works. It thus increases dramatically the range of material scholars may use in their research. It also complements modern editions of Melanchthon's works which still contain major gaps.

Thesaurus Hottingerianus

Advisor: Prof. dr. Fritz Büsser

Thesaurus Hottingerianus is the name given to the estate of the Zurich theologian, church historian and orientalist Johann Heinrich Hottinger (1620-1667). It comprises about 70,000 pages (ca. 18,000 documents) bound in 52 volumes of which only 23 volumes form Hottinger's proper estate. The remaining volumes contain a mixture of older and contemporary documents pertaining to the history of the Reformation that were collected by Hottinger. Among these documents are memorials, broadsheets, and pamphlets. Hottinger also collected the correspondence of the Zurich reformers (Zwingli, Bullinger, Pellican, Bibliander, Gwalther, Lavater, Simler, Vermigli, Gessner etc.) as well as the letters sent to him during his six years in Heidelberg. These latter letters fill six volumes; University papers and sources documenting the efforts toward Union fill another ten. As sources of contemporary history, i.e. on the political and ecclesiastical, theological and literary issues affecting the years immediately after the Thirty Years' War, they represent a barely tapped mine of information.

Advisors: Prof. dr. Richard Stauffer (†) and prof. dr. Rodolphe Peter (†).
Forthcoming supplement edited by prof. dr. Gerald Hobbs

Strasbourg

The Reformation preached by Luther quickly reached Alsace. At Strasbourg the movement for reform of the church rapidly grew in size thanks to the work of three talented theologians: Martin Bucer, Wolfgang Capiton and Caspar Hédion. The major works of Capiton and Hédion are not available in any critical editions and have therefore been made accessible for researchers through this collection. Also included are the principal works of reference for the Reformation at Strasbourg, such as the ones by Roehrich, Baum, Ficker, and Adam. Furthermore, the collection features works by Jean Labadie, Antoinette Bourignon and Pierre Poiret. These works are important keys for the understanding of the origins of Pietism and of certain mystical and para-ecclesiastical currents. A forthcoming supplement will feature, among others, the key Latin works of Martin Bucer.

France

In the seventeenth century France counted a number of theologians of renown, many of whom taught in the academies whose creation was allowed by the Edict of Nantes. The most famous of these was the Academy of Saumur. Of the Saumur professors this collection offers the works of Moïse Amyraut and Louis Cappel, a specialist in Old Testament criticism. It also contains the works of the biggest defenders of orthodoxy: Pierre Dumoulin and his successor Pierre Jurieu.

Reformed Protestantism 3: The Netherlands and Germany

Advisors: Prof. dr. Willem Balke
and prof. dr. Willem van 't Spijker

During the second half of the sixteenth and the first half of the seventeenth centuries there was a close relationship between Reformed Protestantism in The Netherlands and Germany, partially due to the common link with the Geneva of Calvin but also because of political and social factors. Some of the refugee congregations gave rise to a theology and an ecclesiastical praxis with a reformed character which in turn nurtured a strong, richly multiform tradition. Authors who played an important role at the Synod of Dordt and in the Remonstrant and Counter-Remonstrant conflicts are widely represented, as are the traditions of Heidelberg, Herborn and Leiden.

Reformed Protestantism 4: England Puritan Sources of the 16th and 17th Centuries

Advisor: Prof. dr. Robert C. Walton (†)

This collection covers the period 1558-1595, which coincides with the greatest period of activity of the Elizabethan Puritan movement. The term "Puritan" was first used by the defenders of the Old Church, in order to attack the Anglican Settlement of 1558. During the sixteenth century, attempts to reform the Church of England were as much a political effort on the part of the parliament as they were a theological campaign. In the end the co-operation between the Church and the State smashed the movement by the mid-1590s.

Reformed Protestantism 5: East Friesland and North-Western Germany I

Advisor: Prof. dr. Wim Janse

Sources on the development of Reformed Protestantism in East Friesland and North-Western Germany in the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. In the sixteenth century, the seaport town of Emden at the heart of East Friesland grew into the "mother church" of Dutch Calvinism, which was the driving force behind the Dutch Revolt. Concurrently, in neighbouring North-Western Germany the so-called "second Reformation" took place, that is, the calvinizing of Lutheran lands. From 1555 onwards, the Lutheran cities of Bremen and Hamburg became the scenes of sacramentarian controversies which had an impact far beyond their borders. They marked a critical phase in the transition of German left wing Lutherans to (a form of) Calvinism and in the consolidation processes of the Lutheran and Reformed confessions in North-Western Europe.

Reformed Protestantism 5: East Friesland and North-Western Germany II

Advisor: Prof. dr. Wim Janse

This collection completes part 5 of IDC's series on Reformed Protestantism, offering a unique and at the same time exemplary vista of two centuries of Reformed Protestantism in its local lutheran and international Reformed contexts. It focuses on the cities in which early modern North German Reformed Protestantism was centered: Bremen and Emden. The collection presents a nearly exhaustive array of sources on their theologians and their works, correspondence and biographies, on the Bremen Academy, the confessionalization process, and the general and ecclesiastical historiography of the region. The titles in this collection were brought together from ten libraries.

Heinrich Bullinger's Original Publications

Advisor: Prof. dr. Fritz Büsser

Heinrich Bullinger (1504-1575) has always been overshadowed by his predecessor Huldrych Zwingli and his Genevan counterpart Jean Calvin. Yet it was Bullinger who saved the Reformation in Zurich after Zwingli was killed. Bullinger published some 100 books in Latin and German, the most important of which were reprinted many times and translated into other languages before his death. Most of these books are included in this collection.

Heinrich Bullinger: Secondary Sources, 1543-1940

Advisor: Prof. dr. Fritz Büsser

This selection of secondary sources on Heinrich Bullinger (1504-1575) comprises rare and in some cases virtually unobtainable materials printed between 1543 and 1940. Included are biographies, letters, church histories and polemical works by such figures as Josias Simmler, Maurits Albrecht Gooszen and Johannes Cochlaeus. They have been filmed from the rich holdings of the Zentralbibliothek Zurich and the Institute of Swiss Reformation History at the University of Zurich.

Simler Manuscript Collection

Advisor: Prof. dr. Fritz Büsser

This collection of manuscripts and printed documents was assembled by Johann Jacob Simler (1716-1788), a Zurich scholar and official, and fifth-generation descendant of Reformation theologian Josias Simler. It provides a great variety of sources on medieval Zurich as well as on the Reformation and the history of the Reformed Church in Switzerland and Europe from the sixteenth to the eighteenth centuries. Another important feature of Simler's collection are the letters pertaining to the history of the English Reformation published by the Parker Society.

The Works of John Calvin

Advisor: Prof. dr. Francis Higman

Of all the major Reformers, John Calvin (1509-1564) had the most far-reaching influence on the modern world. Calvin's Reformation was not simply a religious movement in the sense of an ecclesiastical reorganization or a doctrinal revision; it was something that touched all areas of life, which involved a profound reorientation of the life of the individual and of society in line with the teachings of the Gospel. The aim of this series is to present the complete works of Calvin in the original editions and in their original languages.

The collection is divided into three sections:

- Section 1. The Institutio
- Section 2. Treatises
- Section 3. Commentaries, lessons and sermons

NEW COLLECTION 2006/2007

The Huguenots

Advisor: Prof. dr. Andrew Pettegree

This collection offers a comprehensive survey of the original writings of the French Huguenot authors, from the first stirrings of radical dissent in the 1530s through to the end of the century. The selection privileges first and foremost original writings of authors writing within France and for an exclusively French audience. Of special interest are the anonymous works that set the tone as the Huguenot movement emerged as an autonomous force during the early part of the 1560s. The titles have been selected from the University of St Andrews French Vernacular Book Project.

Guy de Brès

Advisor: Dr. Emile M. Braekman

Guy de Brès (1522-1567), the faithful disciple of Martin Bucer and John Calvin, is widely regarded as the man who brought the Reformation to the Low Countries. This he achieved both through his personal activity in Belgium and in northern France, and through his influence, due above all to his Confession de foy, which remains to this day the symbolic book of several of the world's Reformed Churches.

The Reformation in Heidelberg I &amp; II

Advisors:

Prof. dr. Richard A. Muller and
dr. Charles D. Gunnoe, Jr.

This collection has been gathered for the purpose of illuminating the intellectual and religious developments during the reigns of Ottheinrich (1556-1559) and Frederick III (1559-1576). Its primary goal is to present the complete works of the major Heidelberg figures (Bouquin, Erastus, Olevianus, Ursinus, Zanchi) as well as a sampling of the works of many secondary figures. Secondly, it illustrates the theological development of the Palatinate including the origins and reception of the Heidelberg Catechism. Here it ventures outside the strict bounds of Reformed Protestantism to include attacks on the Palatine confession by Lutheran scholars.

NEW COLLECTION 2006

Irenical Theology: Heidelberg 1583-1622

Advisor: Prof. dr. Herman J. Selderhuis

During the sixteenth century, Heidelberg distinguished itself by the large number of foreign students studying there. One reason for Heidelberg's attractiveness was the combination of its humanistic training program and the irenical and ecumenical theology taught there by internationally recognized professors. Until now, the works of the Heidelberg theologians have received remarkably little attention. This collection is meant to facilitate further research in the theology of the sixteenth and early seventeenth centuries, as well as to the history of the early modern university. The titles have been brought together from 14 libraries.

Netherlands Reformed Church Archives, c. 1560-1810

The archives of the Netherlands Reformed Church in The Hague comprise and minutes, correspondence, books, lists, registers, manuscripts, psalm books, articles and accounts dating from approximately 1560 to 1800. These documents relate to the activities of the Netherlands Reformed Church, and, more generally, the history of the Reformation in the Netherlands and abroad. The archives also contain the minutes and deliberations of the Provincial Synods, and correspondence on the relations of the Reformed Church with churches in the Dutch East Indies, Ceylon, Pennsylvania, France, Germany, the Baltic countries, etc. Of particular interest are the sources on the crucial dispute between Remonstrants and Contra-Remonstrants leading to the Synod of Dordt in 1618-1619, and the documentation on the "States translation" of the Bible in the 1637.

The Italian Reformation

Advisor: Emidio Campi

One of the principles underlying this collection is to offer a synopsis of the diversity in which the Italian reformation manifested itself. Italy is not ordinarily regarded as a country deeply affected by the sixteenth-century Reformation. In older studies, especially German ones, we find several indications that the movement reached only the intellectuals and aristocrats in the cities. More detailed examination reveals, however, that it influenced the broadest possible range among the country's population. Also, the theological orientation of the Italian reformation was far more diverse than is generally assumed. There were Spiritualists, Reformists, Lutherans, Baptists, and heretics. The collection will be issued in two parts and will consist of approximately 266 titles.

- Expected release Part I: Summer 2006

The Waldenses

Polemic and Historiography of a Religious Minority between 1510 and 1712

Advisor: Dr. Albert de Lange

This collection features two hundred rare books and manuscripts concerning the Waldenses, many of which are the only copies known to have survived. It reveals how prominently the Waldenses figured in the debate over whether the Reformation churches were old or new. The titles have been brought together from 28 libraries in 7 countries.

Hymns of Spiritual and Social Revival in the Early United States

Advisors:

Fr. Raymond Van De Moortell,
dr. Brian Frykenberg
and Dawn Piscitello

This publication offers a careful selection of hymns, spirituals, chants etc. from the Nutter-Metcalf Hymnological Collection and the Special Collections at the Boston University School of Theology Library. While the early American imprints in these collections document the evolution of the modern English hymn, the nineteenth-century hymnals reflect the enormous changes that were taking place in the newly formed United States.

MISSIONARY ARCHIVES BY REGION

The value of missionary archives as a primary source for the study of a variety of scholarly disciplines continues to grow. Over the past 40 years, IDC has created an extremely rich and varied collection of major missionary archives from all over the world. These archives consist mainly of letters, journals and reports sent by missionaries to their home bases. IDC has organized its missionary archives according to area and subject specifications. These selections have significantly been enriched by making them accessible, via extensive indexes, by missionary name, and author and title of printed material.

Available are the following sections:

Missionary Archives: Africa

Conference of British Missionary Societies Archives, 1912-1970 School of Oriental and African Studies, London

The Conference of Missionary Societies in Great Britain and Ireland, more commonly known as the Conference of British Missionary Societies (CBMS), was founded in 1912 as a direct result of the World Mission Conference held at Edinburgh, Scotland in 1910.

The archives of the CBMS are especially important for the study of how missionary organizations at home cooperated with their contacts overseas. It also provides material for studying the "image" presented of the Church's missionary obligation and activities over several decades.

Presbyterian Church of England Foreign Missions Archives 1847-1950

School of Oriental and African Studies, London

When the Presbyterian Church of England was reconstituted as a Synod in 1843, the first steps taken included the formation of a Foreign Missions Committee and the sending out of the first missionary to China in 1847. Throughout its history all the missionary work was done under the authority of the Synod (later Assembly) of the Church, and its archives reflect the integral character of Church and Mission.

Programme to Combat Racism

Advisor: Baldwin Sjollema

The creation of the Programme to Combat Racism (PCR) marked a turning point in the World Council of Churches' (WCC) longstanding opposition to racism. Since its inception, the PCR has been one of the most controversial of the WCC's initiatives. The initial five-year programme concentrated on white racism in South Africa. With the end of apartheid in South Africa, the PCR shifted its attention to the struggle of indigenous peoples and the problem of land rights, as well as to the plight of racially and ethnically oppressed minorities around the world.

Dialogue with People of Living Faiths

Advisor: Dr. Hans Ucko

The desire of the World Council of Churches to open a dialogue with Hindus, Buddhists, Jews and Muslims resulted in the 1971 Dialogue with People of Living Faiths and Ideologies (DFI) program. This program supports interreligious multi-lateral and bi-lateral dialogue with partners of different faiths. This collection details the various meetings at which such dialogues were organized, such as the Christian-Muslim dialogue, the Christian-Hindu dialogue and the Christian-Buddhist dialogue.

World Student Christian Federation Archives, Geneva, 1919-1956

A Selection from the Geneva Archives

Advisors: Martha Smalley and dr. Paul Stuehrenberg

This collection complements the World Student Christian Federation Archives 1895-1925, a selection from the WSCF archives at Yale Divinity School Library. An effort was made to select materials from the Geneva archives that would complement and extend the documentation in the Yale archives. The reports and letters included in this collection provide insight into the contexts and issues that informed the development of the Church in North and South America, continental Europe, Great Britain, Ireland, Asia, Australia, South Africa, and other areas. The structure and activities of the WSCF provide a unique opportunity for focused study of student religious life throughout the world.

Early Printed Korans

The Dissemination of the Koran in the West

Advisor: Prof. dr. Hartmut Bobzin and prof. dr. August den Hollander

This collection demonstrates what impact the holy book of Islam achieved in Europe. Long before printing with movable type became common practice in the Islamic world in the early nineteenth century, korans were printed in Arabic type in several European cities. This collection comprises korans and koran translations in eight languages, including the only surviving copy of the first printed koran (Venice: Paganini, 1537/38). It is of interest to orientlists, theologians, philologists and book historians alike.

This collection is available in two separate installments. For more information, please contact sales@idc.nl.

Book Sales Catalogues of the Dutch Republic, 1599-1800

General advisor:

Prof. dr. M. Keblusek

Initiated by B. van Selm (†)

Advisors: H.W. de Kooker

and Dr. K.J.S. Bostoen

The project aims at tracing and recording all surviving copies of all Dutch book sales catalogues printed before 1801, in order to microfilm one copy of each edition for publication on microfiche and, finally, to compile a bibliography with a census of all extant copies. At present, copies of c. 4,500 catalogues have been traced: c. 3,200 auction catalogues of private libraries and anonymous collections c. 1,150 wholesale and retail catalogues of printers, publishers and booksellers as well as some minor or peripheral categories (whether for an auction or not).

- 21 installments have already been issued
- Scope: c. 3,800 book sales catalogues
- Number of fiche: 5,750
- List price EUR 30,187.-/ US$ 38,812.-

Dutch Occasional Poetry of the 16th through 18th Centuries A genre rediscovered

The genre of occasional poetry, verse written to celebrate milestones in the life of private citizens, was introduced into the young Dutch Republic in the late sixteenth century. Starting from Leyden academic circles, it rapidly gained popularity among large sections of Dutch society; a poem written on the occasion of a wedding or a funeral must have been a status symbol for the well-to-do citizen. Publication of these virtually unknown poems ensures their survival, but also their availability to scholars all over the world. This publication will constitute a firm base for many kinds of research, for historians, art historians, students of genealogy, musicologists, and students of book history.

- 4,888 editions of occasional poetry
- Number of fiche: 935
- List price EUR 7,246.-/ US$ 10,051.-

Dutch Occasional Poetry catalogue on CD-ROM Updated, 2nd version of catalogue on CD-ROM

The microfiche edition is based on the Catalogue of Dutch Occasional Poems, compiled by Adèle Nieuweboer. This catalogue on CD-ROM offers full bibliographical descriptions of all items in the four collections, allowing for specific search and retrieval performances. Eighty additional descriptions of poems from the Royal Library are included on the 2nd updated version of this CD-ROM.

This CD-ROM is complimentary on the purchase of the complete microfiche collection, but can be ordered separately.

- Scope: Detailed records on all 6,700 editions
- List price EUR 150.-/ US$ 199.-

Die Fruchtbringende Gesellschaft

Printed works, manuscripts and images from the German baroque

Advisor: James H. Spohrer

The material in this collection about Germany's first learned society (founded 1617) will bring the German Baroque period vividly to life for researchers. The great Baroque scholar Martin Bircher spent thirty years collecting the materials presented here. The collection includes a great many printed books, manuscripts, copperplate engravings, maps and other graphic materials. These items cover a wide range of subjects, including law, art, religion, theology, history, near eastern philology, geography, music, hagiography and mathematics.

Conrad Gessner's Library

Advisor: Dr. Urs Leu

Conrad Gessner (1516-1565) has been referred to as the "father of bibliography", the "father of zoology", and the greatest naturalist of his times. This Swiss scholar, physician and polymath published the first bibliography of its kind, the Bibliotheca Universalis, an effort to create a complete catalogue of all Hebrew, Greek and Latin works published up to 1545, the year in which it appeared. Gessner, who authored over 70 books, was also a passionate book collector. His private library comprised roughly 500 titles pertaining to such various disciplines as medicine, natural sciences, philosophy, philology, and theology. Many of these books have been heavily annotated by their famous owner. A representative selection of a hundred such books is made available through this collection.

- Expected release: Winter 2006/2007

NEW INSTALLMENT

Sixteenth-Century Pamphlets

Flugschriften des 16. Jahrhunderts

Advisor: Dr. Hans-Joachim Köhler

The Flugschriften series is published in two parts:

Part 1 (1501-1530) consists of 5,000 pamphlets printed in the Holy Roman Empire. They are primarily concerned with the early Reformation movement and its propaganda, with the Peasants' War, the threat presented by the expansion of the Turks and with the various conflicts among the Western European countries.

Part 2 (1531-1600) currently contains ca. 4,650 pamphlets and is supplemented on an annual basis. This part deals with a broad spectrum of themes: the political and military conflicts in Europe such as the Turkish wars, the revolt of the Netherlands, the persecution of French protestants, the status of Calvinists and Zwinglians in the Holy Roman Empire, the Council of Trent, the Anabaptist Kingdom of Münster, the Schmalkaldic War and the Interim, propaganda against the papacy and the Jesuits, intra-Protestant theological quarrels, the building of confessional networks, witch-hunting, anti-Jewish polemics and more.

Erasmus Online (freely accessible)

www.erasmus.org

With an introduction by
Hans Trapman

Erasmus Online has been developed by IDC Publishers for the Erasmus Center for Early Modern Studies in Rotterdam, the Netherlands. Erasmus Online includes:

- Bibliographic descriptions of more than 5,000 rare editions written or edited by Desiderius Erasmus, as well as early translations of his works
- References to major bibliographies (e.g. Bibliotheca Belgica, Proctor, Nijhoff-Kronenberg)
- Over 500 library locations
- Images of some 2,000 title pages
- Various search indexes, including place of publication, printer, editor, and library

All this makes Erasmus Online a valuable tool not only for book historians, historians, and theologians, but for booksellers and auctioneers as well.

Humanism in 16th-Century Zürich Sources of the 15th and 16th Centuries

Advisor: Prof. dr. Fritz Büsser

In the sixteenth century the Zurich "Prophezei" School, a theological academy that had emerged from the Grossmünster School (the "Schola Tigurina Carolina") attracted many outstanding teachers of European stature. In this period the Zurich libraries began to collect works by contemporary humanists. This collection offers a representative cross-section from the holdings of these libraries. It includes collected works, correspondence, classics, individual texts, etc. by all the main figures. Most of the editions (where possible, first editions) date from the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries. Among the authors Italy, as the motherland of humanism, is the country most conspicuously represented (Bembo, Pico della Mirandola, Valla), followed by England (Linacre, More), the Netherlands (Vesalius), France (Bovillus, Budaeus, Postel, Ramus, Faber Stapulensis), Spain (Vives), Vienna (Regiomontanus), Germany (Agricola, Reuchlin), and the Swiss Confederation (Glareanus, Vadianus).

Lavater Correspondence

Letters to and from Johann Caspar Lavater (1741-1801)

Advisor: Prof. dr. Christoph Eggenberger

Co-editor: Marlis Stähli

Johann Caspar Lavater was active in a century that witnessed Enlightenment, Pietism, French Revolution and Restauration. This avid communicator was a representative of an era in which the letter became unique as a means of both research and communication. In their semi-public form, letters acquired a new function: the development of ideas. Through his correspondence Lavater became known to almost all leading personalities of eighteenth-century Europe, including Goethe, Wieland and Rousseau. The more than 21,000 letters in Lavater's estate in the Zentralbibliothek Zürich display the enormous thematic variety produced during a remarkable forty years of correspondence. This correspondence is a rich source for researchers in the fields of theology, history, German literature, and arts.

- Scope: 9,121 letters from Lavater
12,302 letters to Lavater
1,850 correspondents

SOURCES ON THE FRENCH REVOLUTION

French Revolution

Collection de Documents inédits sur l'Histoire économique de la Révolution française. Paris, 1906-1952
Collection de Documents relatifs à l'Histoire de Paris pendant la Révolution française. Paris, 1883-1923

Printed documents concerning France and its capital on the eve of the revolution of 1789 and during the revolution's course. The core of the first collection is formed by the cahiers de doléances, the list of grievances prepared by the local districts throughout France for the meeting of the Estates General in 1789. The second collection, commissioned in the 1880's to mark the centennial of the revolution, includes documents on the history of the Jacobin Club and on various organs of the counterrevolution.

French Revolutionary Opinions

The Trial of King Louis XVI, 1792-1793

Advisor: Erich Pelzer

The arraignment of the king was essentially a political act. It resulted in completely opposite evaluations by both contemporary and later observers. The present collection presents the entire corpus of all public interventions by representatives in the National Convention during the trial from November 1792 to January 1793. A six-volume compilation of speeches and interventions during the trial constitutes the nucleus of the collection. It contains some 300 original writings which originally appeared separately.

French Revolutionary Pamphlets
Usteri collection

Advisor: Erich Pelzer

Collected by Paulus Usteri, these pamphlets are mostly original (in French), published between 1788 and 1796. There are also a few manuscripts published at earlier or later dates (up to 1798). Revolutionary manuscripts in German, which mainly originated from Strasbourg form a small but significant part of the collection. Collection subjects include: political pamphlet literature of the French Pre-revolution, the 'cahiers de doléances', convocations of the Estates-General, events in Paris and the provinces, the National Assembly, constitutional debates, the civil constitution of the Clergy, foreign policy, fiscal reform, the sale of the 'biens nationaux', organization of the army, debates on colonialism and slavery, the counter-revolution, the trial of Louis XVI, the National Convention and the Directory.

- Approximately 6,500 pamphlets.
- Number of fiche: 2,062
- List price EUR 13,918.-/ US$ 18,558.-

French Revolutionary Periodicals

Advisor: Erich Pelzer

IDC is making available a very precious and rare collection of 31 periodicals from the time of the French Revolution held in the Zentralbibliothek in Zürich. The collection constitutes the most important journals from the revolutionary centre in Paris. They cover the whole range of political and ideological positions of different factions throughout the revolutionary decade.

This collection formed part of the private library of Paul Usteri, a Swiss enthusiast of the Revolution, who had also been an editor for a brief time after the Jacobin dictatorship.

Hermann / Londoner Zeitung, 1859-1914

A publication of the German 1848 exiles in England

A unique and rare source, documenting the political development of the revolutionary exiles in London during the pivotal years from 1859 to 1871. This source provides rare insights into the colourful social and cultural life of the German community in Victorian England. Founded (and initially also edited) by Gottfried Kinkel Hermann was financed with funds from the "revolutionary loan", a fund for propaganda purposes raised in 1852, mainly from German immigrants and refugees in the United States.

Freemasonry and Antimasonry

Sources from the Université catholique de Louvain, Belgium. 'Fonds Valentin Brifaut'

Advisor: Dr. Margaret C. Jacob

The last years have witnessed an increasing scholarly interest in the history of Freemasonry. This publication of more than two hundred titles on both Freemasonry and Antimasonry, largely drawn from the period after 1850, enables researchers and students to enrich their understanding of these movements. Included are controversial and apologetic works, works on the history, symbolism, rituals and religious aspects of Freemasonry, works on the constitutions, laws and lodges of the Freemasons, and works on the role of women in Freemasonry.

Itinerario

The study of European expansion overseas - the history of how Western European norms and technology came to prevail throughout the world - has since the last war become a major field for not only historians but also anthropologists, archaeologists, and sociologists. Yet until Itinerario was founded, there was no serial publication devoted to the analysis and interpretation of the subject. Most back issues are out of print: IDC has made available volumes 1975-1987 including the index.

Subject Catalog of Spanish Language and Literature (SCYLLA)

The subject catalog of the Spanish library of the University of Amsterdam. The library covers the subjects of linguistics and literature, as well as the history and culture of Spain and, to a lesser extent, Spanish America. The catalog includes descriptions of books, as well as articles from books and anthologies (such as conference proceedings and memorial volumes). Entries refer to works published primarily between 1960 and 1995, but include some as early as the 1930's and 1940's. Journals referred to are from Spain, a few other European countries, North America and South America.

The British Archives of the International Brigades in Spain, 1936-1939

The International Brigades of volunteers, who set out to halt the advance of fascism during the Civil War in Spain, have become a legend. Contemporary source material documenting this event in depth is difficult to locate. The archive maintained at the Marx Memorial Library, however, contains a wealth of unpublished and authoritative correspondence, together with official and clandestine reports, newspaper despatches, pamphlets, propaganda and journals, making it a uniquely comprehensive source. Over 1,000 previously unpublished photographs show Brigade members from many nations, and document their experiences. The archive provides a wealth of material for students of politics, sociology and history of this critical period of the twentieth century.

- Approx. 25,000 document pages

- List price EUR 2,047.-/ US$ 2,632.-

Dutch Underground Press, 1940-1945

Dutch underground newspapers published between 1940 and 1945

The material ranges from primitively handwritten or typed sheets (calling for opposition to the Nazis or containing simple daily news items) to professionally edited and printed papers with political articles and views as well as pieces on national socialism, measures imposed by the enemy and during the later years of the war, expectations and concepts related to the construction of a "new democracy" in a liberated country, as well as to military and political developments throughout the world. This IDC collection is the most complete one available: as such, it is a marvelous tribute to all those who bravely risked their lives for both the freedom of their nation and the freedom of the press.

Sephardic Editions, 1550-1820 installment 1 and 2

Spanish and Portuguese books written and/or published by Sephardic Jews of Early Modern Europe

Advisor: Dr. Harm den Boer

Meyer Kayserling's Biblioteca española-portuguesa-judaica (1890) is a hallmark of Iberian and Jewish bibliography. It reveals the importance, richness, and variety of the culture produced by the Jews of Spain and Portugal, both the exiles of 1492 and the many converted Jews - the "New Christians" or "conversos" - who returned to Judaism between the sixteenth and the eighteenth centuries. Many of the editions included in Meyer Kayserling's bibliography are exceedingly scarce. With this collection of Sephardic editions, IDC Publishers makes the Sephardi heritage generally available to modern research.

Spanish and Portuguese Printing in the Northern Netherlands, 1584-1825

Descriptive bibliography on CD-ROM

During the seventeenth and eighteenth centuries, over nine hundred works were published in Spanish or Portuguese in the Northern Netherlands. This figure itself is impressive; however, its significance does not lie in the number of editions published, but in their nature: Many of the works printed in the Netherlands could not have been published in Spain or Portugal. The tolerant climate and economic opportunities enjoyed by Iberian exiles in the Low Countries, provided the conditions for a unique editorial activity that added a new, and sometimes defiant, dimension to the culture of the Iberian Golden Age.

Rules and Regulations of Dutch Jewish Communities and Associations, 1726-1943

Advisor: F.J. Hoogewoud

A substantial collection of Rules and Regulations of Dutch Jewish congregations and communities and of Dutch Jewish associations from the Bibliotheca Rosenthaliana. The oldest set of standard Rules dates back to the early years of the Kingdom of the Netherlands, while the most recent one at this time is dated 1943 (!). The Rules cover a wealth of internal Jewish matters in very specific terms. They also reflect Jewish life in Mokum and the Mediene (Amsterdam and elsewhere in the Netherlands) in the nineteenth and twentieth centuries and are of great cultural-historical interest in this respect. Extensive information about the project content is retrievable through the EAD Finding Aid.

Nazi Propaganda Literature

Source Materials on Modern German Anti-Semitism, National Socialism and the Holocaust in the Library of the YIVO Institute for Jewish Research

The Nazi propaganda literature from the YIVO Institute for Jewish research is considered to be one of the greatest contributions to Holocaust Study Resources. The significance of this collection lies not merely in its size, but also in the rarity - and in some cases, uniqueness - of many of the items it contains. The collection includes works on Nazi research about Jews and Judaism, anti-Semitic scholarship, "knapsack books" and many illustrated items that facilitate research on the visual representation of the Jews. IDC Publishers has been selected by the YIVO Institute as its exclusive partner for distributing the collection of Nazi propaganda literature. IDC makes this very important resource available for students of the Holocaust, anti-Semitism and German history and literature.

Hebrew Press in the World

Advisor: G. Kressel

At one time, Hebrew-language journals formed a very small proportion of all Jewish journals. In recent years the Hebrew press has climbed to second place (after English), and quantitatively represents more than a quarter of all the Jewish papers in all languages. This leap forward is ascribable to the fact that Palestine, and later the State of Israel, became the centre of Hebrew journalism. Over the years IDC Publishers has collected an impressive number of Hebrew newspapers and periodicals on microfilm and microfiche.

NEW COLLECTION 2006

Karaite Printing

Advisor: Barry D. Walfish

IDC Publishers has gathered the scattered items and put together a comprehensive collection of Karaite published works, comprising the bulk of the publishing output of this community from the sixteenth until the early twentieth century. These works – which include prayer books, biblical commentaries, philosophical works, halakhic treatises, works on astronomy and the calendar, textbooks, and works of general interest published to educate the Karaite reader – offer a unique opportunity to explore the intellectual and spiritual world of this important, but somewhat neglected, sect.

Moses Maimonides, unparalleled editions

Advisor: Ilana Tahan

The British Library holds an important, wide-ranging collection of books and manuscripts related to Maimonides' life and works. The present selection that contains mostly Hebrew printed editions, is wide in scope, since it embraces virtually the entire spectrum of Maimonides' literary output. It includes imprints from the 16th up to and including the 20th century, some of which constitute landmarks in the history of Hebrew printing. To further illustrate the lasting popularity and wide appeal Maimonides' writings had over subsequent generations of scholars, we have also included examples of bilingual editions containing Hebrew and either Latin, Judeo-German, or French text. The majority of the works are from the British Library collections.

Early Printed Books on Religion from Colonial Spanish America (1543/4-c.1800)

Holdings of the British Library

Editorial assistance:

Dr. B. Taylor, Early Printed Collections, British Library, London

Dr. G. West, Hispanic collections, British Library, London

Printing in colonial Spanish America began early. During the colonial period, the publishing output in Spanish America was dominated by doctrinal and devotional works, confessionals, hymnals and saints' lives. The British Library collection comprises more than 400 works from this period, the majority of which are from Mexico and Peru. Other copies of the original editions exist only in rare book libraries, which makes this collection hard to parallel in any other library in the world. IDC Publishers makes this important resource available to scholars with interests in Spain, Spanish colonial history, Latin America, religion, and church history. The edition will also appeal to those who study or collect sources in Native American languages.

Brazilian Workers' Party (PT), Historical Archive

Causing a veritable earthquake in Brazil's political landscape, the Partido dos Trabalhadores (PT), swept into national prominence in the national elections of 2002. As a relatively new political party, the PT's remarkable electoral successes have solicited considerable attention from a wide variety of observers and analysts. The PT microfilm project aims to preserve the party's historical documents and make them accessible to researchers. The time period comprised in this collection as a whole ranges from the late 1970's, when labor and other social movements began to discuss the idea of building up a Workers' Party to 2002, when its founder, Lula, was elected president of the Brazilian Republic.

Robert J. Alexander Interview Collection

An invaluable source for modern Latin America's political and labor history

Advisor: Dr. John D. French, Duke University

Pioneering Latin Americanist Robert J. Alexander (1918-) was a central player in U.S./ Latin American labor, political, and scholarly affairs after World War II. For some five decades, starting in 1946, Professor Alexander travelled extensively as an engaged witness to and active participant in the major political events in Latin America and the Caribbean. The unique documentation Alexander created and assembled - the largest and most important private archive of its sort - is deposited with Special Collections and University Archives, Rutgers University, New Brunswick, NJ. IDC Publishers is proud to make available the crown jewel of this remarkable collection: Professor Alexander's contemporaneous notes on over 10,000 interviews he conducted with presidents, politicians, trade unionists, businessmen, government officials, military men, diplomats, and scholars.

The History of Religiosity in Latin America, c. 1830-1970 (CIDOC)

Advisors: Valentina Borremans, with the assistance of prof. dr. Ivan Illich (†)

This collection enables scholars to study of religion in modern Latin America. The imprints of the nineteenth and twentieth centuries that reflect local devotions and syncretist rituals, religious iconography and poetry, and the pastoral campaigns of the various churches and sects, went uncollected and unnoticed until the early 1960s, when Ivan Illich began to search for them and to collect them in the CIDOC Library of Cuernavaca, Mexico. The filming of a selection of material from this collection has been done in many libraries throughout Mexico, Venezuela, Brazil, Argentina and Chile.

Western Travellers in the Islamic World. Part 1

This unique collection offers a representative sample of Western travelogues in English, French, Latin, Italian and German published until 1800. They predominantly cover the Ottoman Empire, while some also stretch to the Islamic regions of Central Asia, and of course Iran. This collection offers not only the most well-known works, but also many historiographical gems which have been largely forgotten. These texts document the political, diplomatic, commercial, and cultural relations between the Islamic world and the West in the pre-modern period. Some focus on military conflicts, others on peaceful contacts, but all allow us to reconstruct the shifting images and biases in the West concerning Muslims and the Islamic world, that are still relevant today.

This collection will be published in two parts.

Early Armenian Printing

Advisor: J.J.S. Weitenberg

This collection includes books from Venice that give a very good overview of the early Mekhitarists printings, among them many key works of the founder of the order himself, Mkhitar of Sebaste. Likewise, the books from the Amsterdam Armenian printing house give a fair view on the total production. Among them are the editiones principes of the Armenian Bible (1666) and of the History of Moses of Chorene. The books from Constantinople can only offer a glimpse of the total rich production. Lastly, the books in this from Paris and Rome are good samples of the Western learned tradition concerning Armenia that originated in this time.

Early Ottoman Printing: The Mütferrika Press

On December 14, 1727 the first Turkish printing house was established in Istanbul. The director of the press was Ibrahim Mütferrika (1674-1745), a Hungarian convert to Islam. The earliest printed works from the Ottoman Empire are important source material for the history of Ottoman culture; the transmission of knowledge from Europe to the Ottoman Empire and back; and book history in general. This IDC publication offers the entire collection of books issued from the Mütferrika Press, which are extremely rare.

Early Printed Books from Egypt at the Great Exhibition, London 1851

Advisor: Peter Colvin

The purpose of the Great Universal Exhibition in London 1851 was to present examples of all the best natural and manufactured products of the time. It is significant that the Egyptian government chose to send a collection of the products of the Bulaq press. The Bulaq press was one of the first printing houses in the Arab world, its productions are of a remarkably high quality and the technical works have some fine drawings and plans. The development of Arabic in its nineteenth-century renaissance is currently the subject of a great deal of scholarly interest. The Library of the School of Oriental and African Studies (SOAS) acquired a small but valuable collection of Bulaq imprints, which are now being made available to the scholarly community by IDC Publishers.

NEW COLLECTION 2006

Russian-Ottoman Relations

1600-1800

Sources in Western Languages

Advisor: Dr. Maurits van den Boogert

IDC Publishers, in cooperation with the National Library of Russia in St. Petersburg, now for the first time brings together a unique collection of rare primary sources on a vital and dynamic part of the history of Turkey, Russia, the Middle East and Western Europe – a time in which the roots are found of present-day influence spheres in the region. Published across Europe over a period of two centuries, these sources provide detailed insights not only in the military ebb and flow of Russian-Ottoman relations, but also in their effects on European public opinion.

NEW COLLECTION 2006

Crimean War 1853-1856

Advisor: Dr. Maurits van den Boogert

The Crimean War was fought between Russia on one side, and Britain, France and the Ottoman Empire, on the other. The principal battlefield was the Crimean peninsula in the Black Sea, but it had a much wider impact.

This unique IDC collection brings together a wide range of original sources in various western languages, providing the most balanced collection of sources on this turbulent period in European history to date. Many different points of view are represented, like those of diplomats, journalists and soldiers. Sources include travellers' accounts, political pamphlets, narrative works, and soldiers' memoirs, predominantly published during the second half of the nineteenth century.

Muslims in Russia

Advisor: Dr. Salavat Iskhakov

This collection introduces the uniquely varied and poorly explored Russian Muslim population during one of the most dynamic periods of their history (1861-1918). Materials published in Russia both at the center and on the periphery reflect the picturesque palette of life of Muslims in the Russian Empire, as well as the positions of their public and political figures. This collection presents works written by and about Muslims. The value of this heritage is especially clear now that the historical and spiritual past of Muslims in Russia is being actively reconsidered.

FILES OF NATIONAL COMMUNIST PARTIES FROM THE COMINTERN ARCHIVES

IDC Publishers is expanding its materials from the Comintern Archives. The Comintern ruled over the international Communist movement through its 70 partner organizations in Europe, Asia, America and Africa and deeply influenced the political life of many countries worldwide. Consequently, a new initiative was devoted to the publication of the files of National Communist Parties on analogue carriers. These communist parties have always been secretive organizations. While occasional government raids, subpoenas, search warrants, and congressional investigations made some documentation part of the public record, the quantity was never large because of the party's practice of hiding or destroying records. In addition to records produced by national communist parties, these files also contain documents created or gathered in Moscow by parties' representatives to the Comintern. The files contain the original incoming mail, carbons of outgoing correspondence, reports from regional and local organizers, internal memoranda produced by officials and offices of the national headquarters, paper clippings and rare collections of journals and newspapers.

Comintern Archives:

Everyday Stalinism

Living Standards, Norms and Values of Various Groups of Soviet People in the 1920s and 1930s

Advisor: Prof. Dr. A. K. Sokolov, Institute of Russian History of the Russian Academy of Sciences

This collection contains archival material that was declassified in 1993. The contents of the materials provide an insight into the socialist society of the USSR in the 1920s and 1930s. It provides answers to questions on the cultural and political interest and economic situation of the ordinary soviet citizen within that period. How much money did a Soviet engineer earn? Did every student read Marx and own a radio? Could an average family spend enough money on food? How active were soviet citizens in socialist political movements?

- The collection of RGAE (fond 1562) consists of 57 files (dela) on 27,584 pages.

Everyday Stalinism II

Peasants under Stalinism: Mentality and Way of Life

Advisor: Prof. Dr. A. K. Sokolov, Institute of Russian History of the Russian Academy of Sciences

Letters written by peasants (kolkhozniki) to Krest'ianskaia Gazeta provide a unique insight into the mentality of this group under Stalinism. At the time, peasants comprised the majority of the Soviet population, and these letters reveal their attitudes toward nationality, the financial system, social and economic policy in the countryside, the Soviet government's penal policy, the use of the Red Army in agriculture, Soviet holidays, and family and leisure. Many letters are accompanied by poems, stories, and drawings. The peasants' naïve appreciation and worship of the Soviet party elite is at variance with their attempts to defend their own rights.

Freemasonry in Russia

Early sources

The collection (33 items) consists of manuscripts and books with handwritten marginalia, documents, reports, certificates and a collection with pictures of Masonic symbols and carpet patterns. The collection documents the early stages (ca. 1750 - beginning 19th century) of the development of Freemasonry in Russia. The manuscripts are copies or translations of European books dating from the 15th to the 18th centuries. Included are translations from books by such writers as Jakob Böhme, Johann Arndt and Roger Bacon. Most works are in Russian, but there are also works in English, French and German. The collection provides information about Masonic literature, constitutions and rites. The works also reflect the relationship between Russian and European freemasonry. Items concerning the government's attitude towards freemasons in Russia are included.

Gubernatorial Reports of Russian Imperial Governors, 1855-1864

The reports of the provincial governors of the Russian Empire in the nineteenth century, dispatched annually to the Ministry of the Interior and ultimately to the Tsar himself, are a fundamental source for research on all aspects of the history of Russia. From their inception in 1804 until their cessation during the revolution of 1917, these reports documented economic changes, political events, and popular disturbances, as well as the actions of provincial administration. In them, an unparalleled first-hand contemporary account of life and politics in Tsarist Russia is preserved.

Russia through the eyes of Foreigners

Travel and Personal Accounts of the Russian Empire from the Sixteenth Century to the October Revolution, 1917

Advisor: Prof. Anthony Cross, University of Cambridge

IDC Publishers brings together the most remarkable accounts of journeys to Russia that were published in English between the sixteenth century and the October Revolution, 1917. Foreign accounts of Russia provide a fascinating record of encounters with a country long seen as barbaric. They contain much of value, sometimes in the most unlikely contexts and sometimes of a nature not to be found in native Russian sources. Many of them are illustrated with sketches, paintings, engravings, and – later – photographs. While many accounts deal with Moscow and St. Petersburg, many provide an insight into life and conditions in the provinces of the Russian Empire. Reflecting as they do the conditions prevailing at the time of the visit as seen through the eyes of the traveller, these accounts supply details that can give depth and dimension to the flat surface of the historical fact.

Russian Genealogy

In many cases it is impossible to carry out any research into the history of Russia without referring to genealogical material. Often, this is precisely where to find biographical and other information about persons of interest to a researcher, especially when it concerns “minor” figures rather than famous people. This collection includes general works, as well as the most important works in Russian genealogy for over a century. In general, genealogical publications have had very low circulation rates, with numbers of copies ranging from twenty to a few hundred. As a result, there is limited access to this type of information nowadays. Only a few major libraries in Russia and the rest of the world have relatively complete collections of this literature. The State Historical Public Library of Russia has provided the basis for the present collection.

Birobidzhan

An Experiment to Create a Soviet Jewish Homeland

Advisor: N. Borodulin

In 1934 the Soviet government established the 'Jewish Autonomous Region' (JAR) in a remote and sparsely populated region of the Soviet Far East: Birobidzhan. The creation of the JAR was part of the Communist Party's effort to set up a territorial enclave with a secular Jewish culture, rooted in both Yiddish and socialist principles, that could serve as an alternative to Palestine. The collection includes periodicals, books and pamphlets from the Soviet Union and abroad, rare wall newspapers and art albums, posters.

Jewish Cultural Renaissance in Imperial Russia

Advisor: Dr. Victor Kel'ner

Rare Russian-Jewish Publications from the Late 19th - Early 20th Century

In 1917, there were more Jews living in the Russian Empire than anywhere else in the world. The Jewish population in Russia had grown from 1.6 million in 1820 to 5.6 million in 1910. Starting in the second half of the 19th century, the Jews in the Russian Empire were caught up in a major cultural and social transformation that constituted modernity for the Ashkenazi Jewries.

This collection provides insights into such questions as: What did it mean to be Jewish and Russian, Jewish and modern? Should Jews acculturate, and if so, into which regional or European culture? Which language should Jews speak and teach their children? And what was the relationship between the elite and the popular, the Jewish and the Slavic, the literary and the historical research?

NEW COLLECTION

Jewish Theater under Stalinism: Moscow State Jewish Theater (GOSET)

Introduction by Dr. V. Ivanov

In their time, the Moscow State Jewish Theater (GOSET) and the affiliated Moscow State Jewish Theater School (MGSTU) were outstanding phenomena. GOSET was a pioneer enterprise that merged Yiddish art with Soviet ideology and avant-garde ideas. The character of the theater was determined by a galaxy of outstanding Jewish writers, actors, and artists of the 20th century, namely Marc Chagall, Aleksandr Falk, Peretz Markish, Solomon Mikhoels, and many others. The archival collection from the Russian State Archive of Literature and Art (RGALI) in Moscow contains unique material on Jewish avant-garde art, Stalin's repressions, history of Soviet culture and theater and also deepen and revise our understanding of the Kremlin's policy toward Jewish society and culture, and the everyday life of Jews in the 1920s-40s.

Anti-Soviet Newspapers

Advisor: Dr. G. Mikheeva

Following the successful release of the "Press of the White Movement" collection, IDC Publishers is proud to announce the publication of "Anti-Soviet Newspapers." Until recently, the surviving anti-Soviet newspapers remained undisclosed and practically unknown to academia. IDC Publishers has unearthed one of the world's largest collections of previously inaccessible anti-Soviet newspapers, and is making it available to all those who are interested in the undistorted and true-to-fact history of Russia. In many of these editions, the 'Russian national idea' increasingly assumed the character of anti-Semitism. In this collection there is much information about the numerous pogroms – massacres committed against the Jewish population inspired by Tsarist's regimes and later by anti-Bolsheviks governments during the Civil War.

Press of the White Movement

A collection of leaflets issued in territories under Anti-Bolshevik governments (1917-1920)

Advisor: Dr. G. Mikheeva

Until recently, the surviving leaflets and pamphlets of the Press of the White Movement remained undisclosed and practically unknown to scholarship. IDC Publishers is now making available for research, a collection of approximately 2,500 of these leaflets and pamphlets on microfiche, filmed in the National Library of Russia. This collection includes official documents of civil and military authorities (orders, laws, decrees), as well as valuable information about the interrelationship between the civil population and military structures, and a great deal of other valuable local historical information. A significant portion of the leaflets was issued in the territory of the Volga basin, Ural, and Siberia.

- Approximately 2,500 leaflets and pamphlets.
- Number of fiche: 192
- List price EUR 2,832.-/ US$ 3,840.-

Polish Independent Publications, 1976+

This collection, based on the extensive holdings of Radio Free Europe in Munich and the Polish Library POSK in London, offers unique primary source materials representing a very wide range of opposition and dissident periodicals up to 1988, the year in which many oppositional publications started to appear more or less openly.

- Number of titles: 1,559
- Number of fiche: 3,749
- List price EUR 29,054.-/ US$ 40,301.-

Russian Periodicals and Serials (up to 1917)

Collection of 1,213 titles of Pre-Revolutionary Russian periodicals and serials selected from various collections published by IDC Publishers. It includes many kinds of magazines, newspapers and serials ranging from publications of academies of science, universities, and learned societies to magazines for women and children. A separate group contains indexes to periodicals and serials, and monographs on the history of journalism in Russia. The material in the collection was published in the territory of the Russian Empire and the USSR (including the Russian Federation, Ukraine, Belorussia, Baltic Republics, Azerbaijdzhan, Armenia, and Georgia, as well as several Polish provinces which were once part of the Russian Empire). The collection also contains Russian emigrant periodicals printed abroad.

Russia's Student Press, 1901-1917

In the early twentieth century, Russia's student community – or studenchestvo – was a highly visible and often controversial force in Russian political and social life. Until now, one of the most important sources on this lively period in higher education – the student press – has been largely inaccessible to Western scholars. Students participated in the development of political parties ranging from the extreme left to the extreme right; the Christian renaissance; the spread of national and nationalist movements; the workers' movement; literary, cultural, artistic, and intellectual currents; debates on women's rights and legalized prostitution, as well as on anti-Semitism and the rights of Jews; and, of course, the highly contentious disputes over the political and academic roles of higher education in Russia. Consequently, this collection represents an essential source for scholars researching the history and culture of Russia during the fascinating twilight of its imperial period.

Sankt-Peterburgskie Vedomosti

Sankt-Peterburgskie Vedomosti (St.-Petersburg News), the only Russian newspaper that was published without interruption between 1728 and 1914. It was born in 1728 as a successor of "Vedomosti o voennykh znaniakh i inykh delakh dostoinykh znaniia i pamiati" (News about Events, Both Military and Otherwise, Fit Both to Know and to Remember), which was published between 1703 and 1727. Sankt-Peterburgskie Vedomosti was for several decades the only Russian periodical; it did not have to face competition until 1756, when the "Moskovskie Vedomosti" (Moscow News) appeared. It makes it one of the most important primary sources for the history of Imperial Russia during its final two centuries. Sankt-Peterburgskie Vedomosti is now completely available on microfilm. All the lacunae in the old collection of IDC Publishers have been filmed in the most prominent Russian libraries in St. Petersburg: the National Library of Russia and the Library of the Academy of Sciences (BAN).

Russische Revue

The Russische Revue, a monthly journal in German, was published in St-Petersburg by Carl Röttger between 1872-1891. The majority of the articles in the Russische Revue deal with history, economy and literature. A wealth of material about Russian-German relations, Russian trade, transport, and industry can be found in this journal. Every issue of the Russische Revue includes a statistical description of a city in the Russian Empire, such as Warsaw, Viatka, Baku, Tiflis, Samara, Omsk, Irkutsk and others. Additional statistical and ethnologic reviews about different regions of the Russian Empire, mainly in Siberia and Central Asia are also included.

NEW COLLECTION

Religious Dissent in Russia: Old Believers

Advisor: A.V. Znatnov

The Old Believers originated as a group of religious dissenters opposed to ritualistic innovations in the second half of the 17th century. The dispute had a religious and cultural character and resulted in the schism of the Russian Orthodox Church. This series on the cultural and political heritage of religious dissenters in Russia comprises a wide array of sources gathered from several renowned libraries in Moscow and St. Petersburg. Together they reflect the turbulent history of Old Believers and other dissenting groups. The collection consists of three installments: periodicals, books in kirillicheskii shrift and polemical monographs in grazhdanski shrift. These materials reflect the turbulent history of Old Believers. It will appeal to Slavists, historians, theology students, and others with a special interest in the study of religious and cultural conflict.

Russia and the Holy Land

Orthodox Missions in Palestine

The Holy Land has a special place in the cultural, intellectual, and political history of Russia. This collection presents a Russian tradition of its perception, comprehension, and exploration, as well as the history of the presence of Russia and Russians in the Holy Land. For more than a thousand years, the Russian Orthodox Church has been involved with apostolic and missionary ministry. This publication comprises various Orthodox missionary materials, such as spiritual monographs, missionary periodicals, archaeological sources, maps, and illustrations. IDC Publishers makes this indispensable source available to scholars in various disciplines: Slavic Studies, History, and Theology.

NEW AND COMPREHENSIVE ELECTRONIC REFERENCE WORK ON THE DEAD SEA SCROLLS

The Dead Sea Scrolls Electronic Library

Incorporating The Dead Sea Scrolls Reader

Edited by Emanuel Tov. Prepared by the Foundation for Ancient Research and Mormon Studies, Brigham Young University, Provo, Utah.

The Dead Sea Scrolls (DSS) probably represent the most significant manuscript discovery in recent history. These ancient texts have revolutionized the field of biblical and Judaic studies, and they have become an indispensable source for scholars and students alike. This third volume of the DSS CD-ROM gives a more complete coverage of all of the published DSS materials, including scrolls published in 2004 and 2005.

A major new feature is the addition of morphological analysis to all of the texts. This data gives glosses and part of speech analysis for each word in the database. The database is powered by version 7 of WordCruncher® and has an improved image set.

The Jacoby is the standard collection of ancient Greek historiographical sources. This CD-ROM edition makes this unique reference tool available in a much-needed, easy to use format for the first time.'

'Overall, the people at Brill are to be commended for producing an excellent CD-Rom. It will allow easy searching throughout the texts and commentaries of FGrHist, and there is an obvious convenience in being able to use a single CD instead of 18 massive volumes. The interface is excellent, the search functions are reliable and swift, and the page face is a model of good design.'

John Marincola, Bryn Mawr Classical Review, 2005.

Preclassical and indigenous nonwestern military institutions and methods of warfare are the chief subjects of this annotated bibliography of work published 1967-1997. Emphasis is on historical studies of military organization and the relationships between military and other social institutions, rather than wars and battles.

Encyclopaedia of the Qur'ān

Jane Dammen McAuliffe

Drawing upon a rich scholarly heritage, Brill's Encyclopaedia of the Qur'ān (EQ) combines alphabetically-arranged articles about the contents of the Qur'ān. It is an encyclopaedic dictionary of qur'ānic terms, concepts, personalities, place names, cultural history and exegesis extended with essays on the most important themes and subjects within qur'ānic studies. With nearly 1000 entries in 5 volumes, the EQ is the first comprehensive, multi-volume reference work on the Qur'ān to appear in a Western language.

'The Encyclopaedia of the Qur'ān is an highly prestigious and competent volume from a superb publisher with contributions by the world's leading experts. If readers were to own one volume on this topic, this work would be the encyclopedia to own.'

Linda L. Lam-Easton, American Reference Book Annual, Vol. 34.

Jane Dammen McAuliffe, Ph.D. (Georgetown University, Washington) is Professor of History and Professor of Arabic.

General Information

IDC collections

IDC Publishers makes available to institutional customers – such as university libraries, museums, and research institutes – unique primary sources and reference materials in the form of thematic collections. These collections provide researchers with access to an often scattered heritage of rich primary sources and related reference materials. Collections are available in analog form (silver halide microform preservation quality), with increasing digital access, or in digital form.

Professional partners in project development

For several decades, IDC Publishers has been both publishing highly appreciated sources for research in the humanities, and realizing significant returns to the world of cultural heritage. You can trust IDC as your professional partner in establishing the feasibility of publishing historical material. We are well aware of the vast knowledge of the scholarly field and are strongly involved in developing a wide advisory network of thematic specialists. Many of the initiatives for IDC's projects are taken by experts from within the academic field who experience serious lacks or shortcomings in the availability of primary sources they are used to work with or need to work with. We are always willing to discuss new ideas and are constantly seeking new avenues for cooperation.

Bibliographical research tools

IDC invests in creating metadata and advanced finding aids to enrich its collections in accordance with internationally accepted bibliographic standards, such as:

- MARC21 (for the exchange of bibliographic records)
- AACR2 (for the description of monographs and serials)
- EAD (finding aids for archival collections)
- APPM (for the description of archives, personal papers and manuscripts)

Customer Services

Catalogues and brochures

Online catalogues and brochures are available for most collections at www.idc.nl. If you would prefer a printed version, please contact sales@idc.nl

Collection guides

Our collections are accompanied by printed guides or title lists, which provide bibliographical information at item level and in alphabetical order. With the exception of some older collections, most guides and title lists can be downloaded from our website at www.idc.nl. If you wish to receive a printed guide or title list, just send an email to sales@idc.nl.

Customized pricing information

Although we sell complete collections at attractive prices, you may wish to order only part(s) of a collection. Customized pricing information is available; please send your query to sales@idc.nl.
